GERMANY ASKS U. S. TO WITHOLD JUDGMENT

FRENCH STOP FIERCE GERMAN ATTACKS IN THE VOSGES REGION

Germans Are Also Repulsed in Drive on Crest of Soudernach, Says French Official Statement

HILL BY BREST-LITOVSK CAPTURED BY GERMANS

Drive Against Russian Center Is Kept Up—Germans Announce Sinking of Russian Auxiliary Ship

(By Associated Press.)

PARIS, Aug. 24.—The French war office statement this afternoon reads:

"Last night saw some artillery engagements in the sector to the north of Arras, between the Somme and the Oise, and also in the Argonne.

"In the Vosges there were yesterday some very violent encounters on the heights situated to the east of the River Fecht and to the north of the Schratzmannele. In spite of several counter attacks the enemy found it impossible to recapture the ground they had lost. Equally on the Barrenkopf we retained the advantages won during the evening of August 22.

"The Germans have delivered another attack against our trenches on the crest of Sondernach, but they were repulsed."

Russian Auxiliary Ship Sunk by the Germans

BERLIN, Aug. 24.—(By Wireless to Sayville.)—The German admiralty today announced that a German submarine had torpedoed and sunk a Russian auxiliary ship at the entrance to the Gulf of Finland.

Germans Storm Russian Fortress; Capture Position

(By Associated Press.)

BERLIN, Aug. 24.—(Via London.)—A hill at Kopytow, to the southwest of the Russian fortress of Brest-Litovsk, has been stormed by the Teutonic forces, according to an official statement given out today by the German army headquarters.

Germans Remain Silent On Riga Naval Battle

(By Associated Press.)

LONDON, Aug. 24.—Latest details concerning the Riga naval battle have not cleared up the situation. Petrograd advices indicate that the Germans met with a severe reverse, although official Berlin reports remain silent concerning the Russian claims. The Russians state that an additional cruiser must be added to those reported sunk or put out of action. Whether the German battle cruiser attacked by a British submarine was sunk remains to be told, the official report from Petrograd having given no details beyond stating that she was torpedoed.

Except for the report from the marine ministry at Paris concerning the sinking of a German patrol boat off Ostend, which is admitted by Berlin, no official news has been received of the results of the allied bombardment of German positions on the Belgian coast.

The Russian armies have not stopped the Austro-German advance, although they are compelling the central powers to fight for every step won. Severe encounters continue along the Brest-Litovsk, but the Baltic campaign is making little progress, although a decisive stroke there by Field Marshal von Hindenburg has been long expected.

On the western front, with the exception of an infantry attack which is said to have won for the French some German trenches in the Vosges, the warfare is marked by comparatively ineffectual artillery, bomb and mine combats.

Sell Hammers And Buy Horns, Say Realty Men

Atlanta Real Estate Board Adds Its Approval to Ragsdale's "Get Together" Movement

Deploring the dissension which has "sadly hurt" the city of Atlanta, the Atlanta real estate board has joined Mayor Pro Tem I. N. Ragsdale's "get-together" movement.

Mayor Ragsdale Tuesday said that before he gave out his famous interview urging a revival of the true Atlanta spirit, he scarcely realized that there were as many civic and business organizations in the city as have now pledged their co-operation to the movement.

The real estate board urges the people of Atlanta to "sell their hammers and buy horns." Like practically every other civic or commercial body in the city its resolutions praise the movement begun by Acting Mayor Ragsdale.

The resolutions, adopted through the board of directors, follow:

"Whereas, Atlanta has been torn with dissensions of various kinds and the city of Atlanta sadly hurt; and,

"Whereas, Mayor Pro Tem Ragsdale has made a plea for harmony and a revival of the true 'Atlantic spirit,' of the citizens laying aside differences and getting together for a strong pull towards the upbuilding and re-establishing the prestige of our city, or in other words to 'sell your hammers and buy a horn.'

"Be it resolved, That this organization, through its board of directors, heartily indorse the call of Mayor Pro Tem Ragsdale, and pledge our hearty co-operation and support.

Jewelers Say Prosperity Is On the Rise

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Aug. 24.—The fact that people are again buying jewelry was cited by T. L. Combs, of Omaha, Neb., president of the American National Retail Jewelers' association, in the opening sessions of its convention here, as evidence that good times are returning. The convention began yesterday and will remain in session until Saturday.

"The jewelry business is a good barometer," said Mr. Combs. "People are now buying jewelry and there seems to be no tendency to hoard money. In the jewelry business the panicky war times are no more."

Samuel Hershenstein, assistant United States district attorney, announced to the jewelers that an effort will be made in congress to amend the penal code so that the time during which a bankrupt is absent from the jurisdiction of the state will not be included in granting exemption under the statute of limitations.

French Memorial To U. S. Sympathy

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Aug. 24.—Soldiers of the French army have arranged for the establishment in Paris of three scholarships for Americans to be endowed and named as a monument of gratitude for the sympathy which America has shown to France during the war and as an evidence of their appreciation of the work of the LaFayette fund. News of their action was received at the headquarters of the fund in this city today.

Captain de Pollies wrote that all branches of the army are supporting the plan. The scholarships are in music, art and sculpture, and will be known as the LaFayette Fund Scholarships of the Army. The captain wrote that $8,000 soldiers had been helped and comforted by the kits forwarded to them by the Lafayette fund.

Capt. Chas. Lewis, Pioneer, Is Dead

Captain Charles H. Lewis, aged seventy-seven, one of the pioneer residents of Atlanta, died at his home, 31 Cleburne terrace, at 12:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon.

Captain Lewis is survived by his wife and six children, George H., Joseph T., Harry B., and Miss Annie M. Lewis, all of Atlanta; Mrs. Percy Putnam, of Montgomery, and Robert C. Lewis, of Birmingham. A sister, Mrs. J. D. Turner, also survives.

The funeral arrangements will be announced later.

M'ADOO PREPARED TO PROTECT PRICE OF SOUTH'S COTTON

Will Deposit $30,000,000 in Gold in Atlanta and Other Cities to Be Loaned on Warehouse Receipts

RATE OF INTEREST WILL NOT EXCEED 6 PER CENT

Funds Will Be Loaned Either Through Reserve Banks or National Banks, Whichever Suits Farmers Best

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 24.—Secretary McAdoo was prepared today to extend financial aid to the southern cotton growers to enable them to dispose of their product to the greatest advantage.

The secretary announced that in view of the action of the allies in making cotton contraband, he was ready, if necessary, to take either one of two courses to help the cotton producers. One of these plans is to deposit $30,000,000 or more in gold in the federal reserve banks at Atlanta, Dallas and Richmond to enable those banks to rediscount loans on cotton secured by warehouse receipts made by national and state banks belonging to reserve systems. No interest would be charged on the deposits for the present at least.

The other plan is to deposit the gold directly with national banks agreeing to lend the money on cotton at a rate not to exceed 6 per cent. The latter plan will be used if the object sought can be accomplished with greater efficiency thereby.

Secretary McAdoo declared that if there were co-operation between the bankers, the merchants and producers the cotton situation could be handled with happy results.

McADOO'S STATEMENT.

"In the exercise of the discretion given to him by law, I read the treasury statement, Secretary McAdoo said that the government will for the time being, charge no interest on these deposits in federal reserve banks; that such action is justified by the unusual situation respecting cotton caused by the European war; that he considers it his duty to use every available means in his power to help the cotton producer of the south in the circumstances; that it is a matter of economic importance to the entire nation that those who have produced the cotton crop shall have a fair opportunity to dispose of it gradually and in an orderly manner so they may not be forced, through inability to market their cotton gradually, to sell it at sacrifice prices.

"The secretary said that one of his chief objects was to create a basis for cotton collateral credit in the south that the banks will have ample resources to extend to producers such accommodations as they will be able to carry cotton in warehouses for a reasonable length of time until it can be marketed advantageously. In order to accomplish this, he said, the national and state banks which are members of the federal reserve system should make loans on warehouse receipts for insured cotton at low rates of interest; that the banks can well afford to carry cotton for producers at 6 per cent, especially if they are able to rediscount cotton paper at the federal reserve banks at a much lower rate than 6 per cent; that the credit resources of the banks of the country are greater than ever before in our history and that there is no reason why the banks should not, in co-operation with the merchants of the south, help the cotton producers with loans at low rates in the present peculiar situation.

LOW INTEREST RATE.

"The federal reserve board, the secretary said, had a right to determine the rate of interest which the federal reserve banks can charge member banks on notes or loans secured by insured and warehoused cotton rediscounted with federal reserve banks. He has been unable, to consult his colleagues of the federal reserve board on account of his absence from Washington, but feels confident of their co-operation in every reasonable way.

"Mr. McAdoo said, however, that should it appear that the object in view could be accomplished with greater efficiency to the cotton producers, the merchants and the banks of the south by depositing government funds in the national banks direct instead of in the federal reserve banks, he would take that course and make deposits in such national banks as would give him the assurance that the money so deposited would be loaned on cotton insured or warehoused and at a rate of interest not to exceed 6 per cent.

"The secretary declared he believed that there was no occasion for alarm about the future of cotton and that if the bankers and merchants would co-operate with each other and with the cotton producers of the south in a spirit of patriotism and mutual regard for each other's welfare the situation could be handled with happy results, to all concerned. He expressed the earnest hope that this would be done."

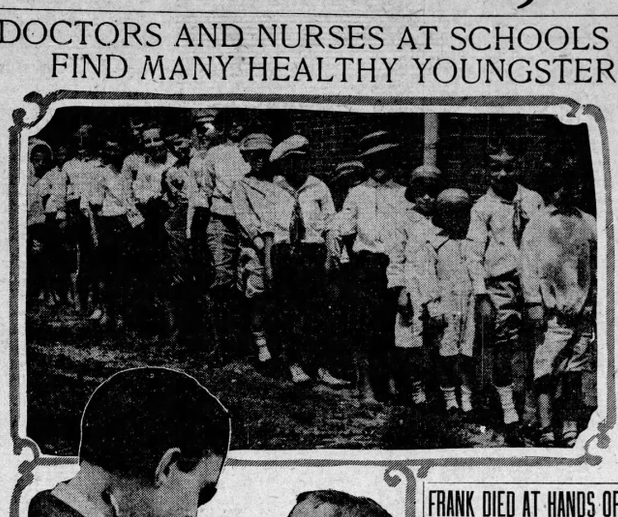
N. Y. Cotton Exchange Favors McAdoo Plan

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Aug. 24.—Secretary McAdoo's plan to deposit $30,000,000 gold or more in federal reserve banks in the south to help finance the early cotton crop movement was received with favor by traders on the cotton exchange here today. Big cotton factors welcome the announcement, which they thought that the money should easily care for the usual orders of Austria and Germany, which in the course of a year amount to about 2,000,000 bales. No immediate effect was expected or noted today, but a more optimistic tone prevailed in the futures market.

It was pointed out, however, that the cotton thus temporarily carried under the treasury department's plan would still have to be reckoned with in the world's markets.

DOCTORS AND NURSES AT SCHOOLS FIND MANY HEALTHY YOUNGSTERS



LITTLE FRED ECHOLS, of 194 Edgewood avenue, was awfully scared when the doctor glared at his teeth, but he recovered later when they said he was "fit as a fiddle." Above are a line of boys waiting to be examined at Ivy Street school.

Work of Examining Atlanta Children Goes Forward Rapidly This Summer

It was TAT day in Atlanta Tuesday.

Skeeter Thompson, who lives just around the corner on Cain street, made up a song about it. He sang it dancing around the yard at Ivy Street school, and all the other little boys sang it, too. It was quite insulting and went like this:

"Jimmy, Jimmy, stick, stack, stim!
Ad'noids, tonsils, bad teeth Jimmy!"

TAT, you see, stands for teeth, adenoids and tonsils, and the children called Tuesday TAT day because the doctors and nurses examined them for tonsils, adenoids, teeth, lack of nutrition, anaemia and all sorts of other strange and horrible diseases.

The day generally comes in the middle of the school year, but this summer the city health department decided to begin examining the children earlier. So Monday the youngsters in the neighborhoods near Williams Street, Oakland City, Highland and Georgia Avenue schools were examined; and Tuesday, at Ivy Street, George W. Adair, Greenwood Avenue and Ira Street schools, nurses and doctors were on the job. By the time school opens hundreds of children will have health certificates and the long work of examination, which sometimes lasts throughout the year, will be almost over.

It was very exciting for the children at Ivy Street school Tuesday. All the little boys raced around in the back yard yelling abusive things at each other while they waited for the little girls to be examined first.

The little girls, frilled and starched to a finish, sat on long benches in the sunshiny room while a man who wore glasses took them one by one, peered down "the long, red lane," stuck a funny tube over the heart and called queer words to a nurse who sat at a table and made scratches on a chart.

The chart had a place for one's name and house number, age and school, and a long list of dreadful ailments such as "tensils, teeth and adenoids."

It was quite a relief to have the doctor say, "There's nothing the matter with you, little girl," and then dismiss you with a wave of the hand.

Still, one's next door neighbor was a terrible and fascinating creature. One's next door neighbor had a little note which said, "Dear Madam, your child has not been vaccinated. Please remedy this defect." Wherefore, one gazed at one's neighbor with fearful curiosity, because, having a defect he was an enviable personage and quite proud of it, too.

VERY LITTLE INCREASE IN STATE TAX RATE

Returns From Floyd and Chatham Greatly Reduce the Deficit

Unexpected increases in the tax returns of Floyd and Chatham counties as shown in reports to the comptroller general's office Tuesday morning have so reduced the apparent deficit of $7,586,440, that General William A. Wright has authorized the statement that the ad valorem tax rate will hardly be increased beyond a levy of 4.70 mills and possibly placed at 4.60 mills, or just enough to take care of the appropriation excess of $185,000 and the cost of the necessary extra session of the general assembly.

The tax returns from Chatham county, received over long distance during the morning, show an increase of $2,079,586, and those of Floyd county a gain of $1,631,274, bringing the total in increases from these two counties to $3,710,810. Deducting this amount from the decrease of $7,586,440, there is a difference of $3,875,630. There also comes from this a deduction of the increase in the corporation taxes amounting to approximately $1,100,000, leaving a decrease of $2,775,630 with but four counties to hear from.

These four counties are Coffee, Jeff Davis, Dawson and Pickens. In reference to the belated returns from these counties, General Wright estimates that they will scarcely show a decrease of more than $1,000,000. He said also that the income from other sources would not increase the present deficit appreciably.

Both General Wright and Tax Commissioner John C. Hart are highly pleased with the tremendous increases shown by Floyd and Chatham counties because of the fact that it will be necessary to raise the tax rate far less than was at first expected when the taxable decrease was looming so large.

The raising of the rate will be decided upon in a few days, following a conference of General Wright and Judge Hart, with Governor Harris, who is still confined to his home with a cold.

FRANK DIED AT HANDS OF UNKNOWN, IS VERDICT

Coroner's Jury, Impanelled at Marietta, Completes Inquest Into Lynching

MARIETTA, Ga., Aug. 24.—Without being able to elicit from any one of eleven witnesses a single clue as to the identity of any person connected with the lynching of Leo M. Frank, near this city last Tuesday morning, the coroner's jury empanelled to inquire into the matter rendered a verdict today that Frank came to his death by hanging at the hands of parties unknown.

City and county officials testified that they had endeavored diligently to get at the facts of the lynching, but so far their efforts had been of no avail.

"Of course you know these things are kept pretty close and are hard to find out," said Mayor E. P. Dobbs, of Marietta.

Deputy Sheriff Hicks and City Marshal Looney stated they were working hard on the case, but at this time could throw no light on the identity of the parties who participated in the lynching.

The nearest disclosure as to what happened in the oak grove near the Frey gin came from J. A. Benson, a Marietta merchant, who drove by the place soon after the lynching party had parked its automobiles by the roadside and had led Frank to the tree where death awaited him.

Mr. Benson said he had a "pretty good suspicion" as to what was going on, but hedid not stop to see it and he didn't recognize anybody in the party.

TEXT OF VERDICT.

The text of the jury verdict was as follows:

"State of Georgia. Cobb county—

"In accordance with the inquisition taken this 17th day of August, 1915, and completed this 24th day of August, 1915, before John A. Booth, coroner of said county, upon the body of Leo M. Frank, who was hanged by the neck until dead in a cluster of woods about two miles east of Marietta, in said county, and near what is known as W. J. Frey's gin, on the Roswell public road, upon the oaths of Dr. W. H. Perkinson, J. N. Gantt, J. A. G. Heard, B. V. Greer, J. F. Shaw and G. A. Griffin, sworn according to law as jurors and charged by John A. Booth to inquire when and how and in what manner the said Leo M. Frank came to his death; that the said jurors after said duke and return the following presentments in reference to the aforesaid matters and things concerning which we were sworn to inquire by the said John A. Booth, coroner. We attach the evidence adduced at this inquiry to this our inquisition, and make the same a part of it.

"We, the jurors aforesaid, upon our oath, say that Leo M. Frank did on the 17th day of August, 1915, in said county, came to his death by being hanged by the neck until dead, by unknown parties."

GRAND JURY CALLED.

Judge H. L. Patterson, of the Blue Ridge circuit, has called a special meeting of the Cobb county grand jury for 9 a. m. on September 1 to investigate the Frank lynching. The members of the jury are as follows: J. H. Mabrey, M. E. Jefferson, M. S. Austin, W. B. Bansford, A. P. McLain, E. B. Brown, W. P. Davis, W. L. Richardson, B. V. Hopkins, W. T. Boring, W. H. Robertson, John H. Terry, R. D. Norton, F. L. Jolly, W. J. Frey, A. H. McCleskey, W. J. Trapp, John Gann, W. P. Groover, W. J. Bishop, J. F. Collins, W. H. Crowder, James T. Anderson, foreman.

Dr. C. D. Elder was the first witness called to the stand. He testified to viewing the body of Frank while it was still hanging in the oak grove, near the Frey gin. Dr. Elder did not know Frank personally, but was told the body was his. He was not present when the body was cut down. When he arrived on the scene of the lynching the body was still warm.

"Do you know any of the circumstances surrounding the hanging?" asked Mr. Dorsey.

"Absolutely nothing," replied the witness.

"You were among the first to reach the scene?"

"Yes, sir."

"How many people were present when you arrived?"

"Perhaps half a dozen."

"Do you know who they were?"

"Yes, sir."

"Please name them," requested Mr. Gann.

"As I came up two men were running out of the woods. One of them was Joe Carter and the other was a man they told me was representing the As-

DISCLAIMS INTENTION TO HARM NEUTRALS

Ambassador Count Von Bernstorff Wires State Department of Germany's Request to Withhold Action

DID NOT INTEND TO KILL ANY AMERICANS

Submarine That Sent White Star Liner to Bottom With Several Americans Has Not Reported Yet

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 24.—Germany, through her ambassador, Count Von Bernstorff, today asked the United States not to take a final stand on the sinking of the White Star liner Arabic until all the facts were known. It was the first word from Germany since the disaster.

The ambassador telegraphed the state department, saying he made the request at the instructions of his government and added that the German admiralty had not yet been able to get a report on the sinking.

Count von Bernstorff, in his telegram, said that if any Americans had been killed "it was contrary to the intentions of the German government" and that it was not the intention of the German government to sink any peaceful merchant ships in a flagrant manner.

HAS GERMANY NEW FACTS?

The ambassador's telegram was not made public here.

His request indicates that the German government may have some facts which, in its opinion, justify the action of the submarine commander. It comes as the first ray of promise on a situation which admittedly was growing darker.

In view of the ambassador's request the state department can do nothing but wait a reasonable time for word from Berlin. Ambassador Gerard has been instructed to watch for a report, but has not been told to ask for one. The German ambassador's request today indicated that one may be forthcoming.

Meanwhile, the state department is gathering evidence from all other sources. When some word is received from Germany, the government's position will be decided.

German Paper Is Glad Torpedo Sank Arabic

(By Associated Press.)

LONDON, Aug. 24.—The Hamburg Nachrichten in an editorial today, says a dispatch from Amsterdam to Reuter's Telegram company, hopes the report that the sinking of the Arabic was caused by a torpedo, will be confirmed, because, the newspaper contends, since the Lusitania disaster only rarely have vessels of more than 5,000 tons been sunk by German torpedoes.

"It has been said with sufficient clearness to the Washington government in notes from our foreign office," says the Nachrichten, "that we can do in this war against a brutal enemy like England renounce no weapon, and least of all, one of our most effective weapons."

After remarking that "Germany's enemies hope President Wilson will liberate them from the dangers of submarine war," the newspaper adds:

"It has not been proved that the vessel was struck by a torpedo and it may have fallen victim to one of those bad English mines."

Admitting it may have been a German torpedo, the Nachrichten contends:

"The U boat acted rightly and even if American passengers on board sank with the steamer and some of them were drowned, then that serves again as a warning that no one should light-heartedly enter the war zone or go within range of weapons."

Berlin Papers Refrain From Commenting Now

(By Associated Press.)

BERLIN, Aug. 24.—(Via London, Aug. 24)—No further details concerning the sinking of the Arabic have been published here and the Berlin papers refrain from comment upon the situation.

The newspapers publish what purports to be a brief dispatch to the London Telegraph quoting Joseph P. Tumulty, President Wilson's secretary, as saying that Americans are unitedly with the president and will, if necessary, offer their lives to maintain the inalienable rights of Americans on land and sea.

The Kreuz Zeitung says: "These inalienable rights, as known, consist of using British passenger steamers."

Several papers published the Arabic's manifest on a trip from New York beginning July 29, as contained in a report of the German-American chamber of commerce of New York. This report says that the Arabic, "which was painted like a battleship, had twelve American guardian angels aboard."

The Lokal Anzeiger says that this report shows that the Arabic was equipped for battle and, therefore, not

TWO THOUSAND PEOPLE DESTITUTE FROM FLOOD

Valley Park, Mo., Without Food or Water, and Factories Have Shut Down

(By Associated Press.)

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 24.—Two thousand residents of Valley Park, Mo., made homeless Sunday when the 35-foot rise of the Meramec river flooded the town with ten to fifteen feet of water, today faced a food and drinking water shortage which threatened to result disastrously. Twenty-five truck loads of food were rushed to the flood refugees from suburbs of St. Louis yesterday but this was consumed before the night was over. A committee of St. Louis business men are planning relief.

The flood waters receded six feet last night. Valley Park was still without light and today the factories gave no hope of early re-employment to 1,000 homeless and unemployed men.

Two railroad bridges at Edwardsville, Ill., near here collapsed last night after withstanding the onrushing flow of water for two days.

Fears Are Felt For Safety of Four-Master

(By Associated Press.)

MOBILE, Ala., Aug. 24.—Fears are entertained here for the safety of the American four-masted schooner Maud Palmer, Wallace, master, now ten days overdue from Trinidad with a cargo of asphalt to the Barber Asphalt company. The Palmer was in the track of the hurricane on August 15 and 16 and it is believed that she has gone down. The vessel is owned at Portland, Maine, by J. W. Winslow & Co.

Arkansas Towns Shy Of Natural Gas Supply

(By Associated Press.)

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Aug. 24.—For the fourth time within a year, Little Rock, Pine Bluff, Hot Springs and a number of smaller Arkansas towns will be without natural gas tomorrow as a result of a break in the main near Lewisville, officials of the company which operates the mains announced today. Water overflowing from Red river has swept away a section of the main, it was stated.

Dispatches from Newport, on the White river, report that while the entire town is inundated, virtually all the inhabitants have been accounted for at the two hotels and courthouse, where they took refuge. Reports that five persons had been drowned in the Oil Trough bottoms near Newport were denied today.

No News as to Fate Of Steamer Marowijne

(By Associated Press.)

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 24.—No word had been received by United Fruit company officials here early today concerning the fate of their steamer Marowijne, overdue eight days from Belize. The wireless messages yesterday from the liners Abangarez and Cartago, which searched the Cuban coast for the missing liner and failed to find her, lessened the hopes of her owner that the Marowijne had escaped foundering in the tropical storm.

Louise Trowbridge, the seven-months-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Trowbridge, died at their home, 214 Randolph street, Monday evening. The funeral will be held at the residence Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock and interment will be in Oakland cemetery.

MRS. E. B. HARRISON.

Mrs. E. B. Harrison, twenty-four years old, died at her home in Jacksonville, Fla., Sunday. The body was brought to Greenberg-Bond's chapel Tuesday morning, and the funeral will be held at the Sacred Heart Catholic church Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock. Surviving her are her mother, Mrs. F. O. Turner, and three brothers, Raoul, Earl and Manuel Llorens.

MILLING IN TRANSIT RATES AGREED UPON

Mill Owners and Railroad Commission Discuss Matter in Conference

The members of the railroad commission and representatives of milling concerns in the state met at the capitol Tuesday and discussed the fixing of rates to cover the "milling in transit" of Georgia grown grain.

The railroads have agreed to fix rates which will enable Georgia mills to buy from the growers, and mill and reship to the customers on through rates, as if the grower had shipped direct to the retail merchant.

Charles J. Haden, of the Georgia chamber of commerce, at whose suggestion the meeting was called, declares that the fixing of these rates will tend very greatly to the prosperity of the state and will stimulate the farmers to raise greater quantities of grain.

O. T. CAMP IS IN RACE FOR CITY COUNCILMAN

Prominent Grocer Candidate in Third Ward on Progressive Platform

O. T. Camp, president of the Camp Grocery company, has entered the race for council from the Third ward. Announcement of his candidacy was made Tuesday morning.

Mr. Camp is president of the Retail Grocers and Butchers' association and has been for the last four years. He was a leading spirit in promoting the mid-week holidays for grocery employees and has taken an active part in the interests of the Southeastern fair and other civic projects.

"I stand for a bigger, better Atlanta in all things, and especially for more co-operation and harmony in the city government," said Mr. Camp, in entering the race.

Mr. Camp is opposed by several other candidates in the Third ward.

JOSEPH RHINEHART SHOT; HIS ASSAILANT UNKNOWN

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

HIAWASSEE, Ga., Aug. 24.—Joseph Rhinehart was shot last night near the Burton Ford's spring, two miles below Young Harris, Ga. It is said that young Rhinehart was talking to Mrs. Burton Ford and her little daughter, standing near by, when some unknown party fired a shotgun at him, several shot entering his back and two or three shot hitting the little girl. Neither one is considered dangerously hurt.

GOVERNORS' CONFERENCE CONVENES IN BOSTON

More Than Thirty States Represented—Many Vital Topics to Be Discussed

(By Associated Press.)

BOSTON, Aug. 24.—Governors and former governors representing more than thirty states are here today to attend the opening of the governors' conference, which is to be in session for four days. Besides the regular meetings, at which papers upon vital topics will be read and discussed, elaborate plans have been made to entertain the visitors, and to give them a comprehensive view of the resources of New England.

Preparedness against war is one of the matters to be considered. On the closing day of the conference Secretary of War Garrison will deliver an address and Governor Fielder, of New Jersey, will read a paper on "The State's Duty in the Matter of National Defense." Secretary of the Navy Daniels has sent a part of the Atlantic fleet to Boston for inspection of the governors and will himself be present. Governor Walsh has arranged a mobilization of the state militia for the third day of the conference.

Among the papers to be read are the following: "Possibilities of the Governors' Conference," former Governor Emmet O'Neal, of Alabama; "State or National Control of Water Power Sites," Governor George A. Carlson, of Colorado; "The Executive Budget," Governor R. L. Williams, of Oklahoma; "The Duty and Responsibility of the Governor in Dealing With Prisoners," former Governor Cole L. Blease, of South Carolina; "Economy and Efficiency in the State," Governor W. S. Hammond, of Minnesota; "Taxation," Governor H. C. Stuart, of Virginia, and "Conservation of Mankind and of Natural Resources," former Governor John A. Dix, of New York.

A public reception will be tendered the governors at the state house tonight. A steamer trip along the coast of Massachusetts bay and automobile drives through the Metropolitan park system, to the North Shore and to Concord and Lexington are included in the program of entertainment.

The governors have been invited to attend the conference of the Society of the Promotion of Training for Public Service, which was purposely arranged for the same dates as the gathering of executives.

This is the eighth annual meeting of governors. The first was held in Washington in 1908, upon invitation of President Roosevelt, to consider the feasibility of uniform state action for the conservation of natural resources. As a result of that gathering the governors' conference was made a permanent organization, and has met annually in different states. This year Governor Walsh is chairman.

Atlantian Finds Bride in Russia

Dr. Dean F. Winn, the Atlanta physician who went to Russia in the American Red Cross, has met romance on the firing line and on September 1 will be married to Miss Alexandra Hartmann, daughter of a prominent Russian family.

Announcement of his approaching marriage was cotnained in a letter to his sister, Mrs. C. P. Roberts, 108 East Merritts avenue. Previous letters from Dr. Winn to Mrs. Roberts and to his brother, Cooper Winn, have spoken of Miss Hartmann, who was a volunteer nurse in the hospital where Dr. Winn was stationed, and have told of his visit to the Hartmann estate at Pachelma; so that the news of his engagement was not such a great surprise after all.

Dr. Winn has many friends in Atlanta who would congratulate him if they could shake hands across the sea" and who hope for his speedy return to America with his bride.

MANY LIVELY RACES ON FOR CITY COUNCIL

City Executive Committee Will Meet Wednesday to Fix Entrance Fees

Council races which will be settled at the primary of September 30 are becoming more lively all over the city.

This is especially true of the Second ward, where both candidates were at the city hall Tuesday, conferring with their friends and making plans for the campaign.

In the Second W. W. Dudley, a railroad man with many friends over the city, is opposing J. J. Poole, for many years a merchant in the Second ward. Both gentlemen stated that they are in the race to the finish.

The city executive committee will meet Wednesday to fix the amount of the entrance fees, which must be paid by the candidates.

WOOLWORTH LEASES FIRST FLOOR EISEMAN BUILDING

New York Firm to Occupy This Space, McClure Store the Upper Floors

The F. W. Woolworth company, owners of the Woolworth building in New York, the largest in the United States, and of a chain of 5 and 10-cent stores extending throughout the country, has opened a store in Atlanta.

The company has just leased from C. W. McClure the ground floor of the Eiseman Brothers' building at 11 Whitehall street.

Mr. McClure leased the entire building from the Eiseman estate, paying a rental of $22,500 a year for it. He has subleased the ground floor to the Woolworth company, retaining the five upper floors. The term of the Woolworth lease is for ten years.

The Woolworth architect is here making alterations on the ground floor. Mr. McClure retained a small space on the ground floor to permit access to the elevators.

The lease is significant as showing that the company expects good business in the south and is willing to take a long lease on an expensive location.

It has been looking for a location in Atlanta for a long time and would consider nothing excet space on Whitehall street between the viaduct and Alabama street.

At the time Eiseman brothers retired from business, it was reported that Woolworth had taken the building. This report was denied. Early in the summer Mr. McClure signed a lease for the entire building.

HAITIEN REVOLUTIONISTS ARE STILL OBSTREPEROUS

Cruiser Tennessee, With 350 Marines Aboard, Will Sail for "Southern Waters"

WASHINGTON, Aug. 24.—Virtually all the natives in the north of Haiti have refused to recognize President Dartiguenave and will support General Bobo, General Morenci, one of the revolutionists, told Admiral Caperton, according to a dispatch to the navy department today.

The admiral cabled that his interview with Morenci was without definite result. No open threats were made against Americans, but Morenci promised nothing beyond the assurance that the natives would be allowed to enter the villages for marketing. Most of the revolutionists are gathered near Cape Haitien.

The cruiser Tennessee, with 350 marines, will sail from Philadelphia Thursday or Friday for "southern waters." Her destination probably will be Haiti.

AUGUSTA FIRM SUFFERS FIRE LOSS OF $40,000

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

AUGUSTA, Ga., Aug. 24.—L. Sylvesters Sons & Co. suffered a fire loss of $40,000 last night. Their store is next to the corner of Eighth and Broad streets, in the heart of the city. The fire was caused by defective wiring and had a very good start before the firemen arrived, due to the fire being on the interior and no one saw the smoke until it began to pour out of the top of the building in dense volumes. The alarm was then turned in and the department held the loss down remarkably low.

POSTPONING OLD AGE

Overworked, weak or diseased kidneys will often make a man or woman feel old before middle age. Rheumatism, aches and pains in back, puffiness under eyes, stiff joints and sore muscles, biliousness, headache and various other symptoms give warning that the kidneys need help. Foley Kidney Pills bring a sound, healthy condition and help the kidneys eliminate uric acid and other poisons from the system, which, when permitted to remain, cause dangerous disease. Sold everywhere.

ARE WOMEN NATURALLY DESPONDENT?

A prominent writer so claims. Women are constituted with a delicate organism and in nine cases out of ten mental depression may be attributed to an abnormal condition of the system, which expresses itself in nervousness, sleeplessness, backache, headache, causing constant misery and as a result despondency. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a simple remedy made from roots and herbs, is the one great remedy for this condition. It goes to the root of the trouble and overcomes despondency.—(Advt.)

CALOMEL DYNAMITES A SLUGGISH LIVER

Crashes into sour bile, making you sick and you lose a day's work

Calomel salivates! It's mercury. Calomel acts like dynamite on a sluggish liver. When calomel comes into contact with sour bile it crashes into it, causing cramping and nausea.

If you feel bilious, headachy, constipated and all knocked out, just go to your druggist and get a 50-cent bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone, which is a harmless vegetable substitute for dangerous calomel. Take a spoonful and if it doesn't start your liver and straighten you up better and quicker than nasty calomel and without making you sick, you just go back and get your money.

If you take calomel today you'll be sick and nauseated tomorrow; besides, it may salivate you, while if you take Dodson's Liver Tone you will wake up feeling great, full of ambition and ready for work or play. It's harmless, pleasant and safe to give to children; they like it.—(Advt.)

GOVERNOR UNDECIDED AS TO EXTRA SESSION

Postpones Decision as to Date and Matters to Be Included in the Call

Still undecided as to when he will call an extra session or what he will include in his call, Governor Nat E. Harris, who has been slightly ill at the mansion since Saturday, was still confined to his home Tuesday.

To the perplexing prohibition problem has been added a cotton problem, caused by Great Britain declaring cotton contraband. The governor is considering whether or not it would be wise to include in the call legislation aimed at regulating and marketing the cotton crop.

THEATERS

Keeping up the high standard of photo plays which has made the Strand so popular with movie fans, the management is offering for Tuesday a five-reel sensational drama, "The Tigress," with Mme. Olga Petrova, the brilliant dramatic actress, in the leading role. The name and fame of this talented woman, in this intensely interesting story of love, intrigue and revenge, kept the Strand packed almost to its doors all of Monday. The picture will be shown again today.

Madame Petrova is splendid in the dramatic scenes of the play. Her support is all that could be desired. The picture is well worth seeing. It will be at the Strand today only. The Strand orchestra is pleasing its audiences with Rossini's Tancredi Overture, which never fails of high appreciation, judging by the applause given the number.

One of the most delightful characterizations ever seen on a motion picture screen is furnished by Margarita Fischer in "The Girl From His Town," a four-act Mutual Masterpicture screened at the American studios, to be shown here one day only, Wednesday, at the Vaudette. It is adapted from the celebrated novel of the same name by Marie Van Vorst. As Sarah Towney, the village soda fountain clerk, who becomes the most famous prima donna of the two hemispheres, this captivating and talented little star furnishes a portrayal that many critics insist is even more striking than her success in "The Lonesome Heart," a preceding Mutual Masterpicture.

Foe's Tribute to Enemy

BERLIN, July 30.—(Correspondence of the Associated Press.)—"A peaceful rest in the blood-stained spil of their fatherland is wished for the brave French warriors by their German comrades of the Lorette Heights."

This is the inscription on a monument erected by German soldiers as a tribute to their fallen foes whom they buried after the terrible struggle for the possession of Lorette Heights.

British Taught Popular Songs By Atlanta Man

British soldiers in the trenches are singing songs that echoed in the Atlanta and Forsyth theaters last winter, "High Jinks" music, perhaps, and strains of "Apple Blossom Time in Normandy" and "When You Wore a Tulip."

They have been taught them by a former Atlanta man, W. F. ("Billy") Clarke, who left here in the spring to fight for England, his native country, and has since won a captaincy in a volunteer London company.

Captain Clarke has written of his fortune to his friends, Mr. and Mrs. Cyril Smith, of Atlanta. It was this letter which tells of Tommy Atkins "singing popular songs, which included many rag selections which I have heard in Atlanta theaters."

Captain Clarke continues by telling how his men crept forward, the music following them, charged a German platoon and captured a gas bag.

"What is a bayonet charge like?" he queries. "You hear the word 'Charge!' and the next moment you see a forest of bayonets, and then the next picture is of some one bending over you saying, 'Try a swallow of this!'"

"I suppose you pessimists in Atlanta still think we are on the losing side," he says, writing from "somewhere not on the skyline." "Forget it! We are going to win and win big. Of course, there is to be another big winter's campaign, and I am looking forward to all sorts of things, such as frost bite, etc."

Captain Clarke's last letter to Mr. and Mrs. Smith was written from London, where he was recruiting troops with the prospect of being sent to the Dardanelles.

AN IMPORTANT LETTER FROM A GEORGIA WOMAN

Augusta, Ga.—"Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription without any doubt put me on my feet when I was suffering from irregularity. I had constant pain in my right side which interfered with my activity, compelling me to keep quiet at such times. My nerves were out of tone as well as my general constitution, and had been for an entire year. Very little activity was exhausting, and I did not get enough rest at night to recuperate, but would awaken the next morning quite lifeless. I read of Doctor Pierce's medicines and immediately began to take the 'Prescription' with the happy result of curing my nervous state, correcting my womanly trouble and giving me health. I have advised others to take it and those that have taken it are equally as well pleased."—MRS. M. O. BRAZLEY, 1018 D'Antignac Street.

There is nothing that will bring comfort and renew hope to the invalid so surely as good news. When the vital forces are at a low ebb and everything seems useless, a ray of joy and assurance will stimulate the weary body to new effort and energy. A letter from a loved one has turned the tide in many a seige of sickness.

Doctor Pierce, of the Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y., has good news for every suffering woman. Write him to-day and tell him your troubles, and he will send you just the right advice to restore you to health and bring back the roses to your cheeks, and without charge. His "Favorite Prescription" has been the rescue of thousands of suffering women. Many grateful patients have taken Dr. Pierce's advice.

Mothers, if your daughters are weak, lack ambition, are troubled with headaches, lassitude and are pale and sickly, Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription is just what they need to surely bring the bloom of health to their cheeks and make them strong and healthy.

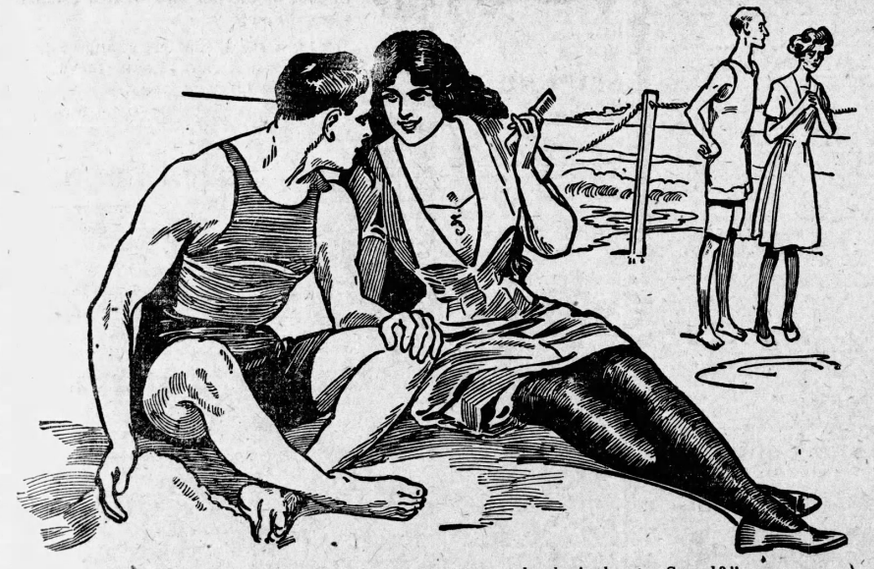
TO PUT ON FLESH AND INCREASE WEIGHT



"Gee, look at that pair of skinny scarecrows, why don't they try Sargol?"

"Sargol has put just 10 pounds on me in 14 days," states W. D. Roberts. "It has made me sleep well, enjoy what I eat, and enabled me to work with interest and pleasure."

"I was all run down to the very bottom," writes F. Gagnon. "I had to quit work. I was so weak. Now, thanks to Sargol, I look like a new man. I gained 22 pounds in 23 days."

"I weighed 132 pounds when I commenced taking Sargol. After taking 20 days I weighed 144 pounds. Sargol is the most wonderful preparation for flesh building I have ever seen," declares D. Martin, and N. D. Sanderson adds, "when I started Sargol I weighed 147 pounds and now I weigh 160 pounds. Everybody is telling me how fat you have got in the last month."

When hundreds of men and women—and there are hundreds, with more coming every day—living in every nook and corner of this broad land voluntarily testify to weight increases ranging all the way from 10 to 35 pounds given them by Sargol, you must admit, Mr. and Mrs. and Miss Thin Reader, that there must be something in this Sargol method of flesh building after all.

Hadn't you better look into it, just as thousands of others have done? Many thin folks say: "I'd give most anything to put on a little extra weight," but when someone suggests a way they excuse claim, "Not a chance. Nothing will make me plump. I'm built to stay thin." Until you have tried Sargol, you do not and cannot know that this is true.

Sargol has put pounds of healthy "stay there" flesh on hundreds who doubted, and in spite of their doubts. You don't have to believe in Sargol to grow plump from its use. You just try it and see if your weight does not pile up, hollows vanish and your figure round out to pleasing normal proportions. You weigh yourself when you begin and again when you finish and you let the scales tell the story.

Sargol is just a tiny concentrated tablet. You take one with every meal. It mixes with the food you eat for the purpose of separating all of its flesh-producing ingredients. It prepares these fat-making elements in an easily assimilated form, which the blood can readily absorb and carry all over your body. Plump, well-developed persons don't need Sargol to produce this result. Their assimilative machinery performs its functions without aid. But thin folks' assimilative organs do not. This fatty portion of their food now goes to waste through their bodies like unburned coal through an open grate. A few days' use will prove whether or not this is true of you. Isn't it worth trying?

If you want a beautiful and well-rounded figure of symmetrical proportions, if you want to gain some solid pounds of healthy stay-there flesh, if you want to increase your weight to normal, weigh what you should weigh, go straight to your druggist today and get a package of Sargol and try it as directed. Sargol will either increase your weight or it won't and the only way to know is to try it. A single package of Sargol easily enables you to make this test. Sixty days' use of Sargol, according to directions, is absolutely guaranteed to increase your weight to a satisfactory degree or your druggist will refund all the money you have paid him for it. Sargol is sold by leading druggists everywhere.

What You Should Weigh

Table of Statistics Similar to Those Used by Leading Life Insurance Companies

Life insurance companies are becoming more and more strict in their physical requirements of those who would take out policies. Any material failing in weight from their table or normal weight statistics is in itself sufficient to cause them, in most cases, to regard the applicant as an "undesirable risk." The following table of normal weights enables both men and women to know exactly what they should weigh to conform to the average for various heights:

Height.	Men.	Women.
5 ft. 0 in.	121	113
5 ft. 1 in.	124	116
5 ft. 2 in.	129	121
5 ft. 3 in.	135	127
5 ft. 4 in.	139	131
5 ft. 5 in.	145	138
5 ft. 6 in.	149	141
5 ft. 7 in.	155	148
5 ft. 8 in.	161	153
5 ft. 9 in.	166	158
5 ft. 10 in.	171	163

We have a splendid line of these in Tams and Sou'westers for girls and boys.

New Junior Suits Just In

Girls who are getting ready to go away to school will be particularly interested in this lot of brand new, lovely, serviceable Coat Suits that we have just opened up. They are especially designed for school girls' wear. There's the dash and life about them that these young ladies demand and at the same time their wearing qualities will prove most satisfactory. They're splendidly made and beautifully finished and will keep their shape and good looks.

There are serges, poplins and gabardines, in navy, dark bottle green, African brown, cadet blue, invisible plaids and novelty mixtures. Some have pleated skirts, others have yokes and belts, still others are circular. The coats are straight box style, the new flare or semi-Norfolk. Box pleats are much used on coats, as are also pockets in plain or the smart cartridge cut. Some of the suits show velvet collars and cuffs of the same color as the suit, inlaid or piped with burnt orange velvet, the new shade that is to be much used this fall. Many of the suit collars button up to the throat in strict military style, but are so finished that they may be worn open when desired. On the finer and more dressy suits, fur is used or a touch of embroidery in Oriental colorings or Hercules braid. Everywhere buttons are employed for decorations as well as service.

It will be a great pleasure to us to show you these Suits. They're well worth seeing, too. Come in tomorrow before the best of them leave us. The prices are very reasonable.

Great Blanket News

We have just opened up 300 pairs of soft, warm, woolly Blankets, clean and fresh from the mill. These are to go into our great August Sale to make the last week the most notable.

Now there's this about these Blankets: They come to us as "Slightly Damaged." We sell them to you the same way. In many instances you couldn't find the imperfection. Maybe it's just a little irregularity of nap, a drop of oil from the machinery, a weak spot in the selvedge.

But this mill is extremely particular—as particular as we are ourselves. So, while there are many of these Blankets that are entirely all right, because some of them show tiny defects, we put the lot in at the very much reduced prices.

These are white and plaid, both single and double bed sizes. The values are from $4.50 to $8.50. This sale

$3.48 to $5.98

Just one more week, remember, of this August Sale. If you need anything in the way of House Linens or Bedding, come down right away and save money on them.

The pessimist at least can't complain of the weather.

If, as reported, Germany is ready for peace, why let her have it.

According to a dispatch, Bulgaria has agreed with Turkey on a "benevolent neutrality." It is hard to conceive of strict neutrality being benevolent.

The open season for persimmon beer approaches regardless of whether the prohibition question will be included in the call for an extra session of the Georgia legislature.

The Land of Promise.

"The Cotton Belt has shown such recuperative power after the shock of war in Europe that the temporary check will help it in the end by directing attention to its resources and the ability of its people to surmount obstacles. . . . This section of the United States is the real land of promise where opportunity awaits the manufacturer and the tiller of the soil."

This generous comment is not by a Southern newspaper but by the New York Commercial, a publication distinguished the country over for its conservative and dependable character. In its leading editorial of August the twenty-first the Commercial, in discussing the industrial and agricultural opportunities of this region, notes that until years commercially recent no one except those immediately concerned gave a thought to the natural facilities the South affords manufacturers. "Those who had not seen the South did not believe that its cotton mills could compete with those of New England, or its iron works with those of Pennsylvania; the impression prevailed that the climate would not permit the successful development of such industries." But when the factories and furnaces were built and their results began to appear, the nation woke with amazement to the unfolding wealth of this field. In like manner, the range and richness of the South's soil long went unappreciated. The tide of immigration that flowed to the West for the development of that section was diverted from the South by "vague stories of worn-out lands" and "pictures of tracts showing traces of war ravage."

"Lacking capital and credit," the Commercial adds, "the South did not show signs of progress until twenty years after the Civil War, and it is only within recent years that the outside world has begun to note the growth of its cities and towns which are today among the most flourishing and attractive on this continent. The development of its water powers is still in its infancy, but the South has done more in this respect than most of the northern and western States. Water power is the most valuable natural resource of the United States and the only one that cannot be lessened with consumption. Since the invention of means of producing and transmitting heavy currents of electricity hundreds of miles with little leakage, the mills no longer need to be located at the waterfalls or dam sites or along high level canals. Southern cotton mills are infinitely better supplied with electric current produced by water power than are the older mills of the north."

This testimony is especially significant as well as gratifying because it comes from so competent and disinterested an observer. The informed leaders in American thought and business recognize what the South has done and is doing and will do for its own and the nation's upbuilding. Mr. Arthur D. Little, of Boston, one of the foremost chemists in the United States declared recently that the South today is in far stronger position industrially than was the entire country in 1880: "It cuts more lumber, mines nearly twice as much coal, produces nearly four times the petroleum and nearly six times the speiter; it has more looms and spindles and a much larger investment in manufacturing plants; its agricultural capital is greater and the products of its farms are worth fifty per cent more; it makes nearly twice as much pig iron and twice as much coke as the whole country produced only thirty-five years ago." Such is the South of the year 1915, the most gifted and most promising region of the entire United States.

The South's wealth is commonly reckoned in terms of cotton. Yet, the grain crop of the Southern States this year will be several hundred million dollars more valuable than any cotton crop this section ever produced. The value of the South's manufactured products exceeds by nearly nine hundred million dollars the output of its farms. Of all the spindles installed in the United States during the last two decades, sixty-five per cent were placed in Southern mills, which now consume in normal years approximately three million bales of cotton as compared with two and a half million bales used by northern mills. Of the two hundred and sixty-two important lines of manufacturing conducted in the United States, two hundred and thirty-six are successfully operated in the South. Judged by its attainments, the South is not only an agricultural empire but an industrial empire as well, and its development in both these spheres is going vigorously forward.

These facts are particularly worth noting as another autumn draws near and we look back to the grave problems and uncertainties that prevailed a twelvemonth ago. Men of courage and foresight predicted then that the South's inherent energy and resources would tide her safely over the crisis. Their faith has been justified. We went through the troublous winter of 1914 woefully handicapped, it is true, but none the less resolute and trustful. Our capacity for endurance and recuperation has been demonstrated. As the New York Commercial suggests, the South is the stronger for the ordeal it has weathered and the dangers it has passed. The South faces the future with confidence and cheer.

Among other fall arrivals, we welcome the new sweet potato.

Genius may be a little backward about coming forward, but talent always shows up on pay day.

According to the Dutch report, Germany is hard up. Probably so. The Krupp works can't manufacture that kind of munitions.

As the British View It.

The London Statist hopes that the United States can remain neutral and so continue in a position to serve the financial needs of poorer countries and also furnish the belligerents with munitions, foodstuffs and raw material for manufactures. "It seems to us," the Statist adds, "that it would be injurious to the world were the United States to depart from the policy she has pursued for a whole twelvemonth; we believe that now she is performing a function which is highly conducive to the prosperity of all the world."

This probably is typical of British judgment on the tense relations now existing between Washington and Berlin. So long as our nation is neutral it has certain privileges which would be hazarded if it were involved in the war, privileges of commerce and diplomacy which none of the belligerents enjoy. Circumstances are such that we can trade freely with the Allies, and except in cases of contraband, our rights are binding upon Germany itself. In fact, the Allies are getting munitions as well as foodstuffs in abundance from America while the Teutons are getting virtually nothing, not because we favor either side but simply because the Allies control the sea while their enemies, save for submarine raids, are fettered in home harbors. Naturally, then, the Allies are content with conditions as they are. Indeed, from their point of view the United States is more serviceable in neutrality than she would be in open antagonism to Germany.

Our Government's course, however, will be determined by no such considerations. We have done everything that is honorably possible to avoid unpleasantness with Germany. But if she persists in defying American rights and in menacing and sacrificing American lives we shall be compelled at least to sever relations with her. And if the facts in the sinking of the Arabic are as reported, Germany seems bent upon forcing this issue.

The pessimist should take stock of the ground he has lost since last fall.

We would suggest that the Mexican factions try the Ragsdale get-together idea.

Germany's naval successes so far seem to have been with passenger steamers and fishing vessels.

Galveston's Sea Wall.

Following the disaster of 1900, Galveston spent millions of dollars for bulwarks against future peril. She built a sea wall seventeen feet high and three miles long; she raised the grade of her water front, constructed huge conduits for overflows and took divers other measures of sturdy defense.

How well this energy and foresight have been repaid is evidenced in the city's recent ordeal. A thousand feet of the sea wall was ripped away, but the mass of the great structure stood unshaken. The property loss from hurricane and flood is distressing; but it is far less than fifteen years ago, while the loss of life is now only fourteen as compared with six thousand in 1900. Galveston has suffered, but her resources are intact and her courage undaunted. "No outside help is needed," her mayor reports. Thanks to the wisdom and hardihood with which she used her former adversity, the city is now able to rally upon its inherent vigor and strength.

We suspect, however, that Germany will offer an excuse.

When an opportunity occurs for kind words deliver the goods.

The Beermen are playing great ball against the Bearmen in the Western league, but the pennant race is still in doubt.

Germany has twice asked for peace, according to one official, and yet Germany would have it appear that war and more of it is what she wants.

Business in Naples.

BY HERBERT COREY.

NAPLES—"Only a franc," said the guide sadly. We launched into a voluble defense. He had merely walked with us to the pier at Pozzuoli. It was a public pier, in plain sight from the carriage. He had only been engaged to protect us from the importunities of others of the gaidly fraternity.

"But I haven't seen an American for eight months," said the guide.

His statement that he needed the money seemed to be well founded. One doesn't think of a guide as a war sufferer at first. If one did, one would be inclined to gloat over the fact, there being a certain lack of cordiality in the relations of travelers and guides. But their situation is really a rather serious one. No one knows how many professional guides there are in Italy. But it is quite safe to say that not one of them is making a living wage.

"Last year," said the Pozzuoli guide, "I was rich. I made from $5 to $7 a day. Now—two, three francs. Oil and wine and maccaroni have all increased in price. I cannot live on what I am making."

Some one made an effort to cheer him up. An indefinite hope was voiced that there might soon be a change.

"It is true," said the guide. "There is a change coming—for me. Next month I go to the war and get shot."

All Italy butters its bread by the aid of tourist money. Each year an untold number of thousands come to see the monuments of the past. A little of the millions of dollars spent by them seep into each Italian pocket. Those thousands are not coming this year. Not even dozens are coming. It is not an exaggeration to say that no one is coming to Italy except upon business, and business men do not spend money on guides. The most lucrative single industry of the kingdom has been cut off.

SHIPPING ALMOST RUINED.

Naples is perhaps the chief sufferer, because Naples is the gateway. Most tourists go to Rome and Venice, and the other magnets for sightseers, of course, but the majority of those from America enter through this city. In normal times one or two ships sail from Naples for America each day, perhaps. This month ten ships are advertised to sail. They leave Naples empty, so far as the cabins are concerned. The exportation of Italian goods has not been interfered with—save the turret fort is designed, not to stop the enemy's projectiles, but to deflect them so that they will do little damage. A shell striking the curved dome of a turret fort will be so deflected that it will expend but little of its energy upon the fort itself but will fly off at a tangent, almost without damage to the fortification.

Then, again, the domed construction allows of another revolutionary development. The modern turret fort is so constructed that it can be revolved about its axis by means of electrical power, thus making it possible for the muzzles of the huge rifles to be pointed in any direction. The rifles themselves are mounted very much like naval guns and the entire operation of serving and loading the pieces appears to have been borrowed from naval usage. The entire fort becomes but an enlarged turret that may be turned about by the simple device of throwing a switch.

The method of aiming such a battery is as interesting as the new novel. The dome or barbette of the whole fortress is rotated until the guns are in a line with the target and then these are elevated or depressed until the proper range is attained. Ordinarily, this would require a large aperture or slit in the rotunda, like that which permits of the operation of a telescope in an observatory. But this slit would also permit of the entrance of shrapnel or fragments of other shells which would be extremely dangerous to the gun crews. In order to obviate this danger, the guns are mounted in close-fitting embrasure and, instead of pointing the rifles up or down as was formerly done, their breeches are moved forward or backward and the desired result is attained without danger to those inside the turret.

The sighting and loading mechanism of the big guns, together with the machinery which rotates the barbette, occupies the entire dome. The ammunition magazines and hoists, the engines which supply the electrical power, and the quarters of the gun crew are all situated in concrete vaults beneath the surface of the ground. In this manner space is economized and the fort is therefore made much smaller and correspondingly difficult to hit.

Despite the fate of the fortifications at Liege, Antwerp, Laon and elsewhere, supposedly impregnable forts falling into the hands of the enemy in a comparatively short time, military experts still claim that the honors in the duel between the fort and the artillery belong to the former. The French fortifications, they argue, were built to withstand only seven and nine-inch siege guns, and, so long as artillery of this caliber was used against them, they gave an excellent account of themselves. It was only when the huge 30.2 and 32-centimeter guns were employed against them that they crumpled up and failed to withstand a strain for which they were never designed.

This, according to military experts, does not prove that fortifications are obsolete or that the great advance in artillery manufacture has outstripped the construction of forts. It merely shows that fortresses should be constructed to withstand the attacks of artillery even heavier than any in existence at the time. When the protecting walls at Antwerp were built no one dreamed that they would ever have to withstand the batterings of 42-centimeter siege pieces, because guns of that caliber had not been conceived. The real test of the value of modern fortifications will come if the Germans engage the really up-to-date type of French or Italian forts or if the allies attack the German coast defenses.

In this connection it is interesting to note that the only weapon which is believed to be really effective against the turret fort is the ordinary rifle, in the hands of experienced infantry. It seems strange that a rifle could succeed when heavy artillery fails, but men versed in military affairs declare that this is the only method of successfully attacking one of these big tortoise forts.

The reason for this lies in the fact that all forts of this nature, in modern warfare, are protected from the enemy's advance by carefully prepared series of trenches and barbed wire entanglements, radiating for several miles to prevent the emplacement of heavy artillery. The big guns are therefore powerless against the fort because they cannot come within range.

The intervening ground must first be cleared by the advance of rifle-armed infantry, aided by the pole or tube system of eliminating the wire entanglements. This is a device resembling a long, hollow mast, made in sections and mounted on rollers, so that it may be pushed under the wires. A number of these tubes, loaded with explosives, are pushed under the entanglements and the fuses lighted. The resultant explosion clears away a sufficient section of the barbed wire to permit of the unhampered onward march of the infantry. The trenches would then be taken with the aid of concentrated fire from the rifles and machine guns, and only then could the heavy artillery be brought into action against the forts. The big guns are practically powerless without the assistance of the rifle-armed infantry, because their sphere of operation lies entirely outside an attack on the trenches which would prevent their approach to the ultimate goal—the fort itself.

But it is easily conceivable that the most massive of modern fortifications would be unable to resist the attack of a well-armed body of infantry, even if the troops were not backed by big guns. The modern fort is usually too well stocked with provisions to be starved out, and this primitive method is too long and tedious to be used unless it is impossible for the siege to be lifted by the arrival of reinforcements.

Accordingly, therefore, the attacking infantry would sink a number of tunnels—technically known as "sapping and mining galleries"—leading up to the fort from as many different directions as possible. A heavy charge of explosive would then be placed at the end of these tunnels and electrically detonated when the signal is given for the attack. There is no known fort that could resist the impact of the explosion of a large quantity of trotyl or even dynamite, and through the breach thus opened the infantry would pour. Because of its vulnerability from below, therefore, it is not safe to say that any fortification is actually "impregnable."

While Gibraltar is associated with impregnability in the popular mind, the fortification that comes much closer to that ideal in the estimation of military expert is that of Helgoland, which guards the entrance to the Kiel canal. Here, mounted on a base of solid rock, are tier after tier of direct-fire guns ranging from 8-2-inch pieces on the upper part of the fort to the 17.7-inch pieces below, capable of sweeping the sea for miles around. In addition, there is a mortar battery in the center of the fort, mounting eleven-inch and sixteen-inch pieces which are designed to smash through the decks of dreadnaughts at ranges up to nine miles.

The attack upon such a fortification, isolated as it is upon an island, would be far from simple, and a part of the study of preparedness on the part of the United States is the emplacement of similar watch-dogs at the entrances to American cities, if the lessons of the European war are not to be unlearned on this side of the Atlantic.

WHEN CHILDREN ARE "BAD"

BY M. ADDINGTON BRUCE.

MUCH harm has been done in the past—and is being done today—through ignorance of the fact that misconduct by children is often a symptom, not of willful naughtiness, but of ill health. Parents and teachers are gradually gaining appreciation of this important truth. But it still is by no means as generally appreciated as it ought to be.

When, for example, a child is lazy and inattentive in school, and lags constantly behind his mates, his laziness may be a most significant danger signal.

Sometimes, on being given a careful medical examination, it will be found that he is lazy because his mind is constitutionally inferior. He is in some degree a born defective, and ought to receive special training as a feeble-minded child.

More frequently laziness is found resultant, not from congenital, but from acquired and curable defects.

Physical malnutrition is a frequent cause of it. If the lazy child is puny and anaemic, he should be given plenty of nourishing food and exercise in the open air. Only thus can his brain receive the blood supply it requires to enable him to concentrate his thoughts on his studies without quickly becoming fatigued.

Laziness, again, may be a danger signal pointing to unsuspected eye strain, ear trouble, or nose disease. Or it may be the result of tooth decay.

Eye strain, ear trouble, nose disease, and tooth decay may also give rise to restlessness and irritability. A child who habitually interferes with the discipline of the classroom by his inability to keep quiet, and by his quarrelsome disposition, ought to be examined most carefully with reference to the condition of his eyes, ears, nose, and mouth.

If the state of these organs is unsatisfactory, nervous disease may be responsible for the restlessness. Frequent coughing, grimacing, giggling, shuffling, sniffling, should be regarded with suspicion, as perhaps testifying to a nervous condition calling for medical treatment.

Persistent untruthfulness is sometimes—in fact, often—likewise symptomatic of nervous disease. There are many children who tell or act the most outrageous lies, not from conscious intention to deceive, but because they are under the influence of a hysterical obsession.

Cowardice is at times another serious danger signal. A child chronically timid, bashful, and cowardly is extremely likely to have a hysterical streak in his psychic make-up.

Ridicule and punishment will not cure such a child. What he needs is sympathetic training to develop will power and self-control.

Also, all cowardly children, whether of a hysterical tendency or not, are in extra need of good food and outdoor exercise. Their courage is likely to grow in proportion with their growth in bodily vigor and strength.

Such are some of the commonest danger signals of childhood. Disregard of them may mean lifelong unhappiness and ill-health. Whereas, if they are heeded, both parent and child will be spared needless suffering.

Parents, in short, cannot go far wrong if they regard every abnormality in their children's behavior as indicative of some mental or physical condition which should be ascertained without delay.

QUIPS AND QUIDDITIES

When the late Senator Wolcott first went to Colorado he and his brother opened a law office at Idaho Springs under the firm name of "Ed Wolcott & Bro." Later the partnership was dissolved. The future senator packed his few assets, including the sign that had hung outside of his office, upon a burro and started for Georgetown, a mining town further up in the hills. Upon his arrival he was greeted by a crowd of miners who critically surveyed him and his outfit. One of them, looking first at the sign that hung over the pack, then at Wolcott, and finally at the donkey, ventured:

"Say, stranger, which of you is Ed?"

"What are you studying now?" asked Mrs. Jobson.

"We have taken up the subject of molecules," answered the son.

"I hope you will be very attentive and practice constantly," said the mother. "I tried to get your father to wear one, but he could not keep it in his eye."

Jones, who appreciates a joke, but, like many others, cannot repeat one with any degree of success, heard for the first time the joke about the dog being the most musical of animals, "because he wears a brass band around his neck," and determined to spring it on the first party of friends to which he was invited. The time came and he electrified his victims with the exclamation, "I say, I've a really good one!" He asked, "Why is a dog the most musical of animals?" They gave it up. "Because," announced Jones, triumphantly, "he wears a brass collar around his neck."

Very few people are ambidextrous; that is able to use the left hand as readily and skilfully as the right. But there is an amusing story of one Irishman who was careful to cultivate that art. When he was signing articles on board a ship he began to sign his name with his right hand, and then changed the pen to his left hand and finished it.

"So you can write with either hand, Pat?" asked the officer.

"Yis, sorr," replied Pat. "Whin I was a boy me father—rest his soul!—always told me: 'Pat, learn to cut yer finger nails wid yer left hand, for some day ye might lose yer right!'"—Youth's Companion.

"Isn't that perfectly ridiculous?" exclaimed Mrs. Binks. "That young Mrs. Upstarte who lives around the corner actually has the audacity to claim that she is of royal lineage."

"Well," said the head of the house, stroking his gray mustache as he thought of bygone days, "she may not be so far wrong at that. I remember her mother when she was a girl, and, believe me, she was some queen."

WANT CAR CO. EXCUSED FROM LAYING CONCRETE

Gordon Street Property Owners Petition Council Concerning Their New Pavement

Property owners of Gordon street at a meeting at the Lee street school Monday almost unanimously adopted resolutions urging the city council not to insist that the Georgia Railway and Power company lay a concrete foundation under the tracks on Gordon street when that thoroughfare is repaved.

Councilman S. L. Dallis at the last meeting of council attempted to get that body not to insist on the carrying out of the concrete foundation ordinance on Gordon street, but council voted his resolution down.

Several members, however, afterwards stated that if the property owners would formally request the exemption, they would reconsider their votes. The action of the meeting Monday probably means that the Gordon street work will not be further delayed.

About thirty property owners were present at the meeting. All except two voted to ask council for the usual crushed stone foundation.

Preston S. Arkwright, president of the power company, addressed the meeting, and declared that as a rule the crushed stone foundation is more satisfactory to the public as well as the company than concrete. He quoted statistics of many cities on their experiments with street foundations, and showed where in some cities there exist ordinances which actually prohibit a trolley company from laying a concrete foundation under its tracks.

W. A. Foster, real estate man and one of the property owners, declared that he had recently visited a number of cities both in the east and west and had observed the effect of concrete foundations for car tracks and considered concrete not as desirable as crushed stone.

The entire Seventh ward delegation, Alderman J. W. Armistead, and Councilmen White and Dallas, will ask council to respect the wishes of the citizens.

THOMAS J. GLENN DIES FROM INJURIES

From injuries received last Saturday night at Simpson street crossing, Thomas J. Glenn, thirty-six years old, formerly of Rome, Ga., an employe of the Georgia railroad, died at a private sanitarium Monday night.

Surviving him are his mother, Mrs. Maggie Glenn; six sisters, Mrs. W. M. Lanham, Austell; Mrs. J. W. Moore, Mrs. F. Sproul, Rome; Mrs. Carrie Davis, Mrs. A. B. Moody, Atlanta, and Mrs. Katie Arnold, Douglas, Ga., and seven brothers, Scott, Edward, Alex, Walter, Forrest, Ollie and Peter Glenn.

The body was removed to Barclay & Brandon's chapel and will be taken Tuesday afternoon to Dykes, Ga., near Rome, for the funeral and interment.

Swindling Charge

Abe Ginsberg, proprietor of a Decatur street moving picture show, is under $500 bond Tuesday for his appearance in recorder's court Tuesday afternoon to answer a charge of cheating and swindling made by another Abe Ginsberg, proprietor of a Decatur street pawn shop, and by a Mrs. Williams, proprietess of a boarding house at 172 Central avenue.

Mrs. Williams says the arrested Ginsberg got $400 from her and has not paid it back.

SAYS CITY'S REVENUE WILL BE OFF $200,000

R. G. West, chief clerk of the comptroller's office, who has been collecting data for some weeks on the city's financial status, expresses the opinion that this year the receipts of the city will fall short by $200,000 of the estimated revenue.

There will be little if any increase from general taxes, according to Mr. West's figures, although an increase of more than $200,000 was anticipated from that source.

An increase in water receipts estimated in June has also failed to materialize.

Chairman A. W. Farlinger, of the finance committee, and Mayor Woolward both contended, when the budget was made in June, that the anticipation was too great. The budget will be readjusted in October when a number of cuts will be made.

OPPOSES PARKING CARS ON MAIN THOROUGHFARES

Fire Chief Cody Says it Would Mean Disaster in Case of Fire

"Automobile owners of Atlanta who insist on parking their cars on the main thoroughfares of the city will some day cause a big fire in Atlanta by preventing the fire department from making speedy progress through the streets and by delaying the firemen in connecting their hose after reaching the scene," said Chief W. B. Cody, of the fire department, Tuesday morning.

"Atlanta is very backward in this respect," continued the chief. "Other cities of her size enforce police rules forbidding the parking of cars in the business districts. If we should have a fire call on Whitehall, Marietta or Peachtree streets we should encounter serious difficulties and delays which would bring on us the condemnation of the very merchants who oppose enforcement of the rules against parking. Their customers will suffer no inconvenience in parking their cars on the side streets. Even if they should suffer a little inconvenience, public safety demands that the parking of cars within the congested districts cease."

Chief Cody plans to take the matter up immediately with Chief of Police Mayo and also to seek aid from the city council at their next meeting.

"It is a matter which has caused me grave concern," declared Chief Cody, "and I do not wish to wait until the horse has gone from the barn to lock the door. If the merchants will look at the condition in its true light they will not only acquiesce, but demand that the parking of cars in the congested districts shall cease."

BUTTERMILK POISONS EIGHT IN COLUMBUS

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

COLUMBUS, Ga., Aug. 24.—Eight persons were poisoned in Columbus yesterday by buttermilk, and, according to the city health officer, they were all affected just like those in Atlanta last week, and the trouble was due to the same conditions. The milk had been placed in a hot kitchen, where it was exposed to both the heat from a stove and sun through a window, which caused a poisonous formation similar to ptomaine.

Health Officer Moncrief, who has the cases in hand, states that none of them are seriously ill today and that all will recover. He says that the trouble was due to presence of a ptomaine known as lyktoxicn, formed by the growth of bacteria in milk, and that it was caused by sun heat.

NEW METHOD TRIED OUT ON WOOD BLOCK PAVING

Auburn Avenue Block Fitted Up in New Style as an Experiment

A new method of laying wood block pavements, which officials of the city construction department say will eliminate the two principal objections to pavements of that character, is being tested on Auburn avenue between Peachtree and Pryor streets.

The objections to wood block pavements have been principally a swelling of the pavement, which in time makes it rough, and its slippery character in wet weather.

On Auburn avenue the blocks are set with an eighth of an inch space between each block, and asphalt is then poured over the surface, sinking into the crevices and binding the blocks together. After the asphalt has been laid pea gravel is heated to 500 degrees and then scattered over the block. The gravel is so hot that it burns it way into the asphalt and the block and becomes firmly embedded there. This prevents horses from slipping and falling and automobiles from skidding. The asphalt binder prevents the swelling.

The work is being done under the supervision of Karl W. Brittian, assistant chief of construction, who recently made a trip to Kansas City, where many of the streets are constructed in this manner. It is the first time, however, that this method has been employed in Atlanta.

CHARGE ARTHUR THURMAN WITH SWINDLING GAME

Arthur Thurman, lawyer, who has figured in a number of sensations during the past three years was placed under arrest Monday night by Detective Rosser and Cochran on the complaint of J. H. Falks, the resturant man.

Thurman was lodged at police headquarters, but soon released on a $500 bond. His trial is set for Tuesday afternoon.

Falks charges that Thurman has been working a swindle by borrowing money on collateral slips supposedly representing money in the Colonial Trust company. Falks and the detectives say that while a charter has been taken out for the Colonial Trust company, such a concern has never been in actual operation here.

GLADYS HANSON FILM COMES BACK TO GRAND

"Climbers" to Be Shown Again at Popular Movie Theater Next Thursday

Gladys Hanson will be at the Grand theater Thursday of this week in a return engagement of the feature film, "The Climbers," picturized from the Clyde Fitch dama, with Miss Hanson in the leading role.

This picture was at the Gand several weeks ago and was seen by Miss Hanson herself at that time. It was rebooked for Thursday at the urgent request of many Atlantians who missed it during the two days it was shown to crowded houses.

Another chance in the Grand program is the announcement that the Lasky picture, "The Clue," starring Blanche Sweet, has been booked for Tuesday.

DELTA THETA PHI HONORS BUCHANAN

Ernest C. Buchanan, judge of the DeKalb division of the municipal court and representative from the University of Georgia, Mercer university and the Atlanta Law school to the national convention of the Delta Theta Phi law fraternity at Detroit, Mich., received the highest honor in the gift of the fraternity Monday when he was elected chief justice of the supreme court of the fraternity. Judge Buchanan's honor is accentuated by the fact that he is the youngest man by twelve years who ever held this office.

COMPLETES HIS STUDY OF CITY GOVERNMENT

H. N. Jefferies, special agent of the federal department of commerce, has completed an investigation of the system of government of the city of Atlanta.

Mr. Jefferies has spent most of his time studying the records of the comptroller's office, which he says he has found in fine shape.

TODAY'S EVENING STORY

The Helping of Ellice

(Copyright, 1915, by W. Werner.)

BARNEY was looking through his fine hedge at Ellice, with one mind to go to her and one mind to hold back a bit longer. Then the gentlemanliness of him conquered, together with his good sense.

"Whist, Barney, me boy," he chided, "'tis not thinkin' of yourself you'll be doing now, but of that poor colleen. Wid yer fayther dist dead and herself only nineteen, wid a bit of house and jist one pig and twinty chickens, she's no fit to make a livin' on a hape of stones. You be knowin' that, Barney. 'Tis your work to see she gets the livin' aisy, wid no finger marks showin' on your hilp and no toil of love makin' to drap alongside till it. If you don't do that same, Barney, me lad, ye're a blackguard. You be so."

The next morning, when Ellice went out to feed her chickens, she found that instead of twenty, with three of them sick, there were fully double that number, and all apparently in perfect health. And in the background were a dozen or more plump hens walking contentedly about. Even as she noticed them, one flew from under the cottage with the loud cackling that proclaims a fresh laid egg. Barney was at work digging out stones just beyond the line hedge.

"Oh—oh, Barney!" Ellice called. "Come and get your chickens."

"Eh?" Barney answered abstractedly, straightening his shoulders from the work.

"Chickens, ye say? Mine's over here by me hincoop, feedin'. I've only got twilve, ye know."

Ellice glanced across the low hedge. Yes, there were Barney's feeding near his hencoop; and they were too near neighbors for her not to know just how many he had. She carefully counted them—twelve.

"Whose are these, then?" she demanded. "No one keeps hins within half a mile excipt you and me."

Barney dropped his pick and came slowly to the hedge.

"A foine lot," he commented, as he looked the flock over approvingly. "Hins wid rid combs which show they do be layin', and chickens fat and plump. Whose are they, ye say? 'Tis hard to tell win one don't know. Hins travel a long way, sometimes. No," as Ellice raised a stick as though to shoo them away. "I wouldn't be doing that. 'Tis likely they belong to some poor widdy woman who dipinds thim for things to ate. It's keepin' thim I'd be till ye find out who she is, or she comes after thim herself. If ye drive thim off foxes and wild craytures will get thim likely, and the poor widdy lose her all. The eggs will pay for their kape and more. Well, I'll be going. 'Tis busy I am wid me rocks."

A few mornings later Ellice found her laying flock increased by nearly twenty more—from the same flock, Barney assured her when he looked them over. "The widdy will soon be comin' now," he said conclusively, "for 'tis her livin' that has slipped away entirely. She will folly thim up by the tracks. The laste ye can do, Ellice, is to kape thim till she comes."

He watched her as she threw a handful of grain to the flock, which pecked at it once or twice and then walked indifferently away. "'Tis wastin' the food ye are, Ellice," he warned. "Ye'd better save it to whin they're hungry."

"But why are they not hungry now?" questioned Ellice perplexedly. "I niver saw such hens. The whole lot of thim have not eaten a panful in two whole wakes."

"'Tis the insects and the little craytures in the grass," explained Barney. "At this season the hins like such things best."

That day Ellice went among the neighbors, even to a mile away, looking for the owner of the poultry. But no one seemed to know of any hens and chickens being lost, especially of the kind she described, which were of a superior breed. And the only widdywoman she could hear of who owned poultry lived three miles farther on, but her poultry were of a different kind.

Ellice returned with an anxious frown on her face. But the least she could do, as Barney had assured her, was to keep the fowls until their owners had appeared. The eggs would pay many times for their keep. When she reached home what she saw grazing placidly in front of her cot made her look quickly toward the line fence. Yes, Barney was just on the other side, digging away at his stones.

"Oh, Barney," she called, "come and hilp me drive out the cow!"

Barney did not even look up from his work.

"Is it the stray animal ye mane, Ellice?" he said, between the blows of his pick. "I was lookin' at her before ye came. 'Tis a foine baste she is entirely, and a stranger to these parts, for I know every horse and cow in four miles. She slipped in from the public highway whilst ye was gone. Ye let the bars down, I'm thinkin'."

"But come hilp me drive her out."

Barney rested his hands upon the handle of his pick.

"Why, Ellice," he remonstrated, "how can ye be so onchristian? Look till the bag on her, four gallons of good swate milk if 'tis a pint, and think of the sufferin' of the poor crayture, draggin' that round, and her owner not findin' her for days to come, maybe. No, no, acushla; remimber, 'tis a good heart ye do be havin' whiles. Bring out all the pans and kettles ye've got and relave th poor crayture of her milk, then let her crop the bit grass among the stones till the owner comes. The milk be payin' ye foine for kape. But it's busy I am wid the stones, Ellice, if ye don't mind. 'Tis a great estate I do be makin' out of me sivin acres."

His pick rose high into the air and came down with a determined, silencing thud; and after watching him for a few moments with a cloud of annoyance on her face, Ellice turned and walked away.

It was a week before she returned to the hedge again; and then it was of her own accord, with an errand. She was becoming lonesome, though she would not admit the fact to herself. Even her father, with all his moroseness and crabbed ways, had talked occasionally.

"'Tis a great worker ye're becomin', Barney, for sure," she began, "but what will ye do wid the stones? It's destroyin' all the land ye'll be, gettin' this out."

Barney straightened himself and surveyed the huge piles of stones critically.

"There do be many," he acknowledged proudly. "It niver seemed possible me sivin acres could yield so much. 'Tis good land entirely. But the destination of thim stones, Ellice, is a great sacret, which is not to be told now. However when they're cleared out the land will be planted wid corn and wheat. 'Tis grain the country do be needin' here; and whin I raise it the neighbors will folly and raise it, too. Then your water power on the hillside will have its mill and the land will be prosperous entirely."

Ellice threw up her head, her eyes glowing.

"Do ye think that, Barney?" she breathed. "Do ye really think me water power will have its mill—in me own day, I mane?"

"Sure it will," positively, "and before ye're much older. 'Tis bound to come. But hold on!" as Ellice turned suddenly and ran for her cot, "what's the matter?"

She was gone only a few seconds, however, returning with a pan covered with a white cloth, which she carried carefully.

"'Tis some of me own butter," she explained, coloring rosily, "and some cakes and milk. I fixed thim for ye this mornin', but ye was workin' so onremittin' and not noticin' that I—didn't know how ye might take it, maybe thinkin' me bold, and I lift thim on the table."

Barney dropped his pick and reached the hedge with two wild bounds.

"And ye fixed thim for me, Ellice, for me?" he demanded, with something in his eyes which made her own drop and the color deepen on her face. "What for?"

"Why—why, 'twas man's cookin' ye was atin'," she stammered, "and ye know that's niver good for pick workin'. Besides, it's lashin's I do be havin' now. Siven pounds of butter sold last wake, and twilve dozen eggs. It's prosperous I am entirely. 'Tis aisy for even a girl to be makin' a livin' these days. And next wake I do commence to dig his riverence's praties, like I did last year."

With gathering courage she raised her eyes shyly, only to let them fall instantly, for Barney's feet were high in the air, passing the barrier of the hedge.

"Ye will not do so, Ellice," he declared, as he seized her unresisting hands. "'Tis not for the likes of you to dig praties. His riverence will tell you that. There do be plenty of poor people who nade the work. 'Tis but a cold heart would take it from thim. And now I'll tell ye the sayceret about the stones. 'Tis to hilp build the mill they are, and whin all have come from me own land I will dig yours, and the two hapes will build a grand mill entirely. Then it's 200 pounds I do be havin' in a Dublin bank, which will fill up wid machinery and things. Then it's grain we'll be plantin' on the two estates—on the one consolidayted estate, I mane," correcting himself, "and inducements we'll be showing the neighbors to plant grain likewise the same way. Sure, 'tis prosperous we'll be beyond all countin', mavourneen. Is it not so?"

"Whist, I——" But his eyes and arms were too strong for her. Her face hid itself against his shoulder. "'Tis yourself has the conquerin' way, Barney," she whispered.

Better Conditions in Mines

(London Globe.)

Evidence was recently given before a house of lords' committee by a northern colliery manager to the effect that while in his district the coal got by a man in a day averaged five tons twenty-five years ago, it had now dropped to three and one-half tons. The result was that if at any particular colliery it was desired to maintain the output it was necessary to employ a considerably larger number of men.

To give exact figures, in 1900 the men employed at the collieries with which he was connected were getting 4.6 tons a man, while in 1914 it had dropped to 3.43 tons a man. Notwithstanding this drop, the miners' wages had gone up.

SAVANNAH DIVORCEE MARRIES NOVELIST

RICHMOND, Va., Aug. 24.—Mrs. Garnett V. Hunter, divorcee, of Savannah, was married here yesterday to Harley Van Reissalear Bugene, Chicago novelist.

FRANK DIED AT HANDS OF UNKNOWN, IS VERDICT

sociated Press. I also saw Mr. W. J. Frey, E. L. Robinson and W. A. Sams."

"Was Frank dead?"

"Yes, sir. The death rigor had not set in, however."

NO MUTILATION OF BODY.

"Was there any mutilation of the body?"

"No, sir. The only mark I saw was the cut in the neck had been opened by the rope."

Dr. W. M. Kemp, another physician, testified that Frank's death was due to strangulation.

"Do you know anything about the commission of this act?" asked Mr. Dorsey.

"Nothing whatever."

"That's all."

J. Bart Wing, a Cobb county commissioner, was the next witness. He also was among the first to reach the scene of the lynching after the body was discovered.

"Do you know anything about the hanging?" he was asked.

"Nothing."

"Is there anything you would like to state to the jury?"

Mr. Wing hesitated a moment. Then he said:

"Nothing, except that that morning on the road I saw several automobiles on the Roswell road going in the direction of Marietta."

"What time was this?"

"Between 6:30 and 7 o'clock in the morning."

"Where were you at the time?"

"I had been fishing with Bob Cochran, a neighbor. We were in a buggy and I had driven my horse into a creek to water him, when three or four automobiles went by. We were forty or fifty yards off the road. Bob Cochran said to me, 'I wonder what all that crowd is?' I said, 'Look like joy riders to me.'"

"Could you tell who were in the machines?"

"No, sir; I couldn't tell whether they were negroes or white people."

W. J. Frey, owner of the place on which Frank was lynched and regarded as the star witness of the inquest, next was sworn. Mr. Frey, an ex-sheriff of the county, took the stand in his shirt sleeves. He is a very large man of about forty-five, with a short brown mustache and florid complexion.

"Mr. Frey," asked Acting Solicitor Dorsey, "did you know Leo M. Frank?"

"I attended his trial in Atlanta two days, but I did not know him."

"You were among the first to discover the body?"

"Well, sir, when I got there with Gus Benson and Walter Gann, there wasn't anybody in the grove but Leo M. Frank."

"When did you first know anything had happened that morning?"

"I think it was about 5 o'clock that morning my brother telephoned me the state prison farm had been broken into and Frank taken out."

"What did you do then?"

"Didn't do anything, but went on about my business at home. Walter Gann, a traveling man from Augusta, was visiting at my place. I live right on the main road. Mr. Gann and I were in the field about 6:30 or 7 o'clock when three or four automobiles came whizzing by the place. They were about 40 yards apart."

"How fast were they going?"

"Well, sir, they were coming along pretty pert; I should say 25 or 30 miles an hour.'

"Then what happened?"

"Well, sir, having heard about the break at the prison farm, it popped right up into my mind there was something doing in the way of Frank."

SEEN FRANK IN AUTO.

Mr. Frey said the man he afterward fiund out it was Frank was seated in the rear seat of one of the passing cars, a man being on either side of him.

"How was Frank dressed?"

"Looked as if he had on a thin shirt of some sort. He was bareheaded."

"Did you know at the time this man was Frank?"

"I thought it was him but I couldn't recognize him."

"Did you recognize any of the other parties in the cars?"

"No, sir."

"Do you know now who they were?"

"No, sir."

"Were they masked?"

"No, sir, but they all wore goggles and their faces were covered with red dust."

"What did you do next?" Frey was asked.

"I turned to Walter Gann and said, 'let's go to the house. There's something going to be doing.' We went to the house and Mrs. Frey had breakfast ready for us in about five minutes. We ate and I got my car started and we put out for Marietta."

Mr. Frey said he passed the actual scene of the hanging without noticing anything out of the way.

FINDS FRANK'S BODY.

"I had no idea anything had happened that close to my home. So I came on to town but did not see anything yet. I went to the cemetery where Mary Phagan is buried, but there was nothing there. I came back into Marietta and met Gus Benson who said: 'Bill those automobiles turned in the road by your gin.' I drove right back to the gin and when we reached the oak grove there was the body of Frank hanging."

"What did you do then?"

"I looked at him but didn't put my hands on him."

"Is there any further light you can throw on this transaction?"

"No, sir; I've told you all I saw and all I know."

Frey was excused.

J. A. Benson, a Marietta merchant, known as Gus Benson, was the next witness. He drove in from the country some minutes after the lynching party passed the Frey place.

"Driving on into town I saw three or four cars parked near the Frey gin," said Mr. Benson.

"Did you stop?"

"No, sir."

"What did you see?"

"I saw one man step out of one of the cars."

"Did you recognize him?"

"No, sir, emphatically."

"Did you recognize anybody in any of the cars?"

"No, sir; I was going by pretty fast."

"You then came on into town and met Mr. Frey?"

"Yes, sir."

"Well, where did you get the idea Frank had been hanged there at the gin?"

"From the cars there and what I heard when I passed the Frey place."

"It was a guess then?"

"Well, sir, when I came by the Frey place Bill called to me that he thought there was something doing. I had seen in the morning paper about what had happened at the prison farm. So it all excited my suspicion."

"Did you see again or recognize any of the machines you passed at the gin?"

"No, sir."

"Is there any further light you can throw on this case?"

"No, sir."

H. H. Looney, city marshal of Marietta, said he knew nothing of the lynching until after the body was discovered.

"You are bending your best efforts to discover who took part in this transaction?" suggested Mr. Dorsey.

"Yes, sir."

"Well, is there any light you can throw on the situation at this time?"

"No, sir, this transaction was really outside the city limits, but we are cooperating with the county officials."

"Did you see anything unusual last Monday night to indicate that the people who did this thing came from Marietta?"

"No, sir. On Monday night we always have two nigger dances in town. I stay up late that night, for these dances generally always end up in a row. I saw nothing unusual or suspicious last Monday night, although I was up until 2 a. m."

MAYOR DOBBS ON STAND.

Mayor E. P. Dobbs, of Marietta, who is also a state senator, said that when he first heard of the lynching he thought the story was a hoax.

"I met Deputy Sheriff Hicks," said the mayor, "and asked him about it. He said he knew nothing. I suggested that we get a car and go out to the Frey gin, although I thought at the time that when we got back the town folk would have a good laugh on us. I didn't believe we would find Frank, but when we got to the oak thicket there he was hanging by the neck."

"Deputy Sheriff Hicks took charge of the situation. We have done all in our power to find out who composed the party that hanged Frank. I told Marshal Looney to instruct the entire police force to get all the information possible, and report to me the slightest clue."

"Have you received a report?"

"No, sir, not yet."

"Is there anything else you would like to say."

"I have seen in the papers that a lot of automobiles were missing from Marietta the morning of the lynching. The truth is we didn't miss a single car. I have no idea whether Marietta people or country people were engaged in this transaction. I do not believe the Marietta people are any more responsible for this than people of the county or any other county. We don't know who did this. It may have been people from another county who brought Frank to this county.

"DOING ALL WE CAN."

"We are doing all we can, gentlemen, but of course you know these things are hard to find out."

Charles Mell and W. L. Gray were on the scene of the lynching soon after it happened, but saw no one connected with it. Gray said he saw automobiles "going both ways" along the road early in the morning, but paid no attention to them.

Deputy Sheriff Hicks stated to the jury that he and Sheriff Swanson were doing all in their power to discover the persons "engaged in the transaction." He said he searched Marietta the day of the lynching, but could find no cars that bore evidence of having been on a long journey.

The jury then retired and three minutes later returned its verdict.

Good News of Fall Dresses and Their Prices

Dresses That Foreshadow the Coming Fashions at Extraordinarily Low Prices

Let us call this an exposition of the new dress fashions for Fall, it is all of that and it is more than that. For such an event is usually marked by prices commensurate with what is exhibited; but here, and we say it plainly and emphatically, the prices do not represent the full values. Trim, smart styles stamped with an unmistakable newness and charm.

But let's see just what they are.

Taffeta Dresses
in plain shades of blue, brown and in black.

Novelty Silk Dresses
the new plaids and the new stripes; rich colorings.

Charmeuse Dresses
in plain shades of blue, brown and in black.

Silk and Serge Dresses
plaids, striped and plain silks used with serges.

At $11.75, $12.98, $15.00, $17.50 and $25.00

A hundred style points to claim your interest. Coatees made of serge and forming a short waisted effect, and beside these, a silk dress with leather belt so placed that the dress becomes a long waisted style; others very straight and loose fitting, a sort of Russian style; still others showing a decided "nip" in at the waist. Indeed lines are varied.

And the new plaids, the new stripes, the new use of serge in flounces, in tunics—the effects are mildly startling but decidedly likable.

And now note again the prices: $11.75, $12.98, $15.00, $17.50 and $25.00.

LITTLE BEDTIME STORIES

By Thornton W. Burgess.

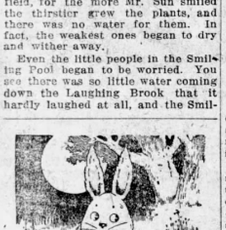
When you hear the Tree Toad calling
Be sure that rain will soon be falling.

THIS is an old saying, but like a great many sayings it is not more than half true. The fact is Sticky-Toes the Tree Toad does what most sensible folks do—sings when he is contented and happy. And because he is most comfortable and happy in damp weather he is very apt to sing when he feels the air growing moist, as just before a storm. So a lot of people have foolishly come to believe that he can actually call up rain. Of course he cannot do anything of the kind.

Now, there had been a very long dry spell, and the grass on the Green Meadows was no longer green, but dry and brown. In the Old Pasture it was still browner. Even the leaves of the Green Forest looked dry and sickly. Every day jolly, bright, round Mr. Sun climbed up in the blue, blue sky, and smiled his broadest, until, instead of rejoicing at the sight of his smiling face, the little people of the Green Meadows and the Green Forest and the Old Orchard dreaded to see it, and Farmer Brown and his boy looked with troubled faces at their garden and cornfield, for the more Mr. Sun smiled the thirstier grew the plants, and there was no water for them. In fact, the weakest ones began to dry and wither away.

Even the little people in the Smiling Pool began to be worried. You see there was so little water coming down the Laughing Brook that it hardly laughed at all, and the Smiling Pool grew smaller and smaller. Every day Old Mother West Wind tumbled her children, the Merry Little Breezes, out of the big bag in which she brings them down from the Purple Hills, and they did their best to make it comfortable for the little people of the Green Meadows, but it was so hot that they themselves had to give up.



Every Night He Ran Over to the Laughing Brook of the Smiling Pool for a Bath.

Every day Peter Rabbit looked eerily for rain clouds, but there were none. Every night he ran over to the Laughing Brook or the Smiling Pool for a bath, so as to cool off. It was while he was on his way there one night that he remembered having heard some time or other that Sticky-Toes the Tree Toad could call rain. As usual Peter started off pell-mell, so was he thought of this.

He started to look for Sticky-Toes the Tree Toad.

"If he can call rain he ought to do it, and he ought to do it right away," thought Peter. "I wonder that he hasn't done it before. I wonder where he is."

Now, finding Sticky-Toes, unless you hear his voice to guide you, is not an easy matter, as Peter soon found out. Peter began by asking every one he met if he had seen Sticky-Toes. Of course every one wanted to know why he was so anxious to find Sticky-Toes.

"To get him to call rain," said Peter. "You know they say he can call rain, and I don't know of anybody else who can."

Of course everybody repeated what Peter had said, and the story grew, as stories have a way of doing, until at last it was given out as a fact that Sticky-Toes could call rain. The little people believed it because they wanted to believe it. Then they began to be angry because he didn't call rain, never once stopping to think how foolish it was to believe that any one could call rain. Yes, sir, they began to blame little Sticky-Toes for the dry weather, and to say unkind things about him, and then to threaten what they would do to him if they found him and he refused to call rain. You see the hot, dry weather was making them cross and unreasonable. And every one went looking for Sticky-Toes the Tree Toad.

"Hello! Is this Miss Bugg?"
"Yes."
"This is Mr. Gubb talking."
"Oh, yes."
"My roommate and myself thought that you and Miss Seitz might want to go to the movies with us this evening."
"Why—we had something—hold the wire just a minute."

(What he thought they said).

"Say, Annie, this handsome Mr. Gubb wants to take us to the movies. Don't you think we had better break this theater date and go with him? He's so fascinating!"

"Why, yes—I'd much rather go with him."

(What they really said).

"Annie, this mutt Gubb wants to take us to the movies. Do you think we had better accept or take a chance on some one else? It's rather late."

"Oh, I suppose we may as well do something."

"Yes, Mr. Gubb—we'll be delighted to go."

DRESS

BY ANNE RITTENHOUSE

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—It is very good for the world of women that blue serge is the staff of dress. It is regarded as more or less smart in appearance, according to the frame of mind in different seasons, but it never really loses its prestige.

There are times when the big dressmakers do not touch it, leaving it entirely to the inexpensive, ready-to-wear departments; but for two years every dressmaker of repute has used blue serge for working out some of the cleverest ideas.

The price of a well-made gown of this material has not gone down a fraction of a dollar in two years because of this fact, and we gratefully face another autumn when blue serge will be considered smart costume for the street. There is a strong revival of one-piece frocks in this fabric; one sees six of them to a suit. This form of costume will be adopted as the correct street one throughout the next three months, and whenever the weather becomes chilly a necessary warmth will be given by a top coat of black and white checks, or of dull plaid. These top coats were never so smart and they have supplemented the coat suit in a large degree.

There are many women who object to this combination because they feel that a one-piece frock is not as cool and comfortable as a thin suit with a fine white blouse. They object to the feeling of cloth above the waist when they are sitting in the house; but they do not realize that it is no longer necessary to make a serge gown in a solid piece of material stretched from shoulder to ankle; transparent fabric may be substituted from the line of the bust upward. If one has fine shoulders and arms thinly covered, one gets the same effect of comfort as from a muslin waist.

There is quite a fashion for combining silk and serge. Wherever satin was used silk is now substituted. If one prefers chiffon cloth of voile one can choose it with a clear conscience, for it is quite fashionable. Many of the smart gowns worn this month at Newport had sleeves and yoke of chiffon voile, always in the same color as the gown, even white was not used as contrast.

The sketch shows one of new French gowns made of this serge such as men wear. The skirt is circular and rather wide, but there is no excess of material over the hips, because there is a yoke that closely fits the figure and extends to the top of the circular flounce. At each side of it there is a straight band of the serge finished with a button and long silk buttonhole. Notice well this trick, because it is adopted by many of the best dressmakers as a means of flattening the natural curve of the hips, which is not fashionable, even though the designers have struggled to bring back the Victorian waist.

The blouse of this frock has the same arrangement of silk above the belt as the skirt has below it. It also is held flat over the bust by straight pieces of the material, edged with button and buttonhole.

The long, small sleeves are set in on the lining, a trick which Cheruit began two years ago and which seems to be coming back in high favor. The armhole is merely stitched or corded in these new frocks and hangs loosely above the sleeve, which is sometimes of a different fabric.

To give brilliancy and a cool effect to this blouse of dark blue there is a small yoke and high collar of white organdie, the weave that the French call communion cloth, because it has been worn immemorially by the little children when they attend their first communion in Catholic countries.

The struggle is still on between the high, straight collar and the rolling one that shows the neck. It is a go-as-you-please race. The compromise is in the collar that stands high at the back and sides, as does this one.

The Iceman and the Ladies

By Edna K. Wooley

"HI, MA'AM! Call off your dog!"

"Oh, he doesn't bite. He just barks," said the housewife as she opened the kitchen door to admit a tall, gangling chap with a chunk of ice on his shoulder. "Oh, wait a minute," as he started to swing the ice into the refrigerator. "I want to weigh it."

The man gave a sigh of resignation and heaved the ice onto the kitchen scale, noting unconcernedly while the housewife eyed the indicator.

"Well, that isn't so bad," she announced. "It's only three-fourths of a pound short. The last man on the job used to be five to seven pounds short."

"Was he that tall, dark man that talked through his nose?" queried the young fellow, as he hacked at the ice to make it fit the ice chamber.

"You talk like a fortune teller," giggled the housewife. "Yes, he was—and, really, he's the only iceman I ever had trouble with."

"We ain't such a bad lot," he asserted. "But that Bill—he was the limit. He got the can." He sure had hard work, Bill does, and he's got a wife and a new kid every year. How he supports 'em I don't know, 'cause he never keeps a job, he's that lazy."

"Well, lazy or not, I don't think he was honest," declared the housewife. "And he always stayed in that house on the corner half an hour every morning, and that made him late all around. I'd just like to know what kept him there."

"Mebbe that's the place where the hired girl gave him a bottle of beer," ventured the iceman. "According to Bill, he's some favor-ite with the ladies. He says as how they're always giving him something so's he'll favor them in ice, I suppose."

"Yes, and take it off somebody who doesn't," sniffed the housewife. "I gave him something, too, but it was a piece of my mind."

"Yes'm," grinned the iceman. "Bill tells a heap of stories, he does. He says as how he first went to delivering ice he got onto the real shapes of all the women on his route. He says it's a wonder how some of 'em manage to get into their street clothes, and at first he was so nervous because none of 'em seemed to mind him around, without much on 'em. But he got used to it, he says, and it didn't make no more difference to him if a lady looked as if she just slipped on a kimono after her bath and come down to the kitchen to fix the ice box. He says he used to be a bashful man before he began delivering ice, but if the ladies didn't mind running around in their houses with their clothes so you could see through 'em and half slipping off at that, sure he wasn't going to mind either."

"They couldn't be ladies," declared the housewife.

"Oh, yes'm!" assured the iceman. "Bill says as it wasn't the hired girls—they was mostly always dressed, and the most he seen was on the hired girl's day out when the missus herself had to tend to things."

"The very idea!" gasped the housewife. "That Bill man is even a more miserable creature than I thought he was. I don't believe a word of it. Do you ever see such sights?"

"No, ma'am," asserted the iceman, as he carefully closed the screen door after him. "No, ma'am—sh'd say not. don't look."

ARE YOU A GOOD COOK?

SO YOU do your own cooking? Are you a good cook?

But what difference does it make how one puts it, for the real question is this: Do you realize the tremendous importance of food to your health, long happiness and worldly success? So whether you yourself charm the grocer's and butcher's supplies into good or bad dishes, or whether you pay somebody by the month to do either for you it is all the same.

The question has to do with what you get out of food.

Somebody has said that Americans are the worst cooks in the world, and that this is due to the fact that nations take kindly to our cooking recipes. We pride ourselves on what we call plain living, which is only another phrase for dyspepsia and mental boredom.

Pleasure is absolutely required for the proper digestion of food, that thrilling telephone message to palate and stomach which the sight and smell of good things bring about. This delicious anticipation starts the gastric juices flowing, liberates the secretions of saliva in the mouth, and so prepares the way for speedier digestion and assimilation than would come without it. When the mental pleasantness is absent, in fact, one can never be sure of the stomach's acceptance of food. The nausea one so often feels after eating is a sure indication, among others, that the stomach and palate have had little interest in the diet. Hence the tremendous importance of good cooking, since the finer qualities of the senses are needed to charm away the indigestion forever lurking in foodstuffs. The sense of smell, the saliva, the gastric juices are the bond servants of the mind, and so the mind itself must be pleased.

If we could live without eating we surely would, but since we cannot there is nothing to do but get all the good that is to be found in food. The natural way to do this is only in one twenty-fourth of its weight daily, and consequently we have to supply like materials. These elements of the body, chemically speaking, are nitrogenous and non-nitrogenous. The nitrogenous foodstuffs are both animal and vegetable, and are taken into the body in the form of proteids, which are subdivided into numerous other essences necessary for life and health. All of these essences are constructive, the builders of energy, mental and physical. They stimulate the changes natural to the body and generate its heat. When food is badly cooked the power of the unseen helpers is lost or weakened, and malnutrition, if not actual ill-health, is the result. It is food, which makes our blood, bones and flesh, so if we want these good we should have the food good. That mysterious thing called the soul is also in bondage to the fineness or coarseness of our eating, all of the substances appropriated by the veins and lymphatics seeming to change it to some degree for better or worse.

KNOW HOW TO MAKE VEIL GIVE YOU FLIRTY LOOK?---HERE'S HOW

Miss Elizabeth Crist

Easy Enough to Drop Veil So You Look Coquettish or Demure as a Saint, Says Woman Who Has Different One for Every Occasion

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 24.—A veil, if worn by one who understands its possibilities, is really one of the most coquettish adjuncts of a girl's wardrobe.

A veil can be worn so that it makes the wearer look a wee bit "flirty."

It can be draped so that she looks as demure as a saint.

All this veil wisdom comes from no less a person than Miss Elizabeth Crist, of Lynchburg, Va., who is said to have a veil for every occasion and style of attire.

Miss Crist, be it known, should have authority to speak for she has recently been adjudged by her own friends, usually the severest critics, as the most beautiful of them all.

She came to Los Angeles with a party of southern belles who jointly agree she is their best looker.

"Dress undoubtedly plays a part in the beauty conquest," Miss Crist admits.

"The right choice of colors brings out beauty. Correct lines accentuate a good figure or aid a poor one. Accessories are a wonderful assistance, too. And among these must always be remembered, very kindly, the little veil. Some veils, the short veils, for instance, are smart and chic. Some veils like the droopy, long ones, are graceful. Some are coquettish, as, for instance, those with a queer spot or two in them. And some are just plain frowzy. The latter are the kind worn 'down at chin,' hanging loose and baggy and untidy.

"After all," concludes Miss Crist, "it's all in the way one wears things. And why not wear them right?"

The Girl's Job

By Jessie Roberts

IF you are a girl of artistic leanings, with a sense of color and form, a feeling for decoration, and a spirit of fun, why don't you consider the possibilities of toymaking?

One woman is making a great success at this work. She does all the designing, and has her toys cut out in wood by a carpenter. After that she takes them, does the carving that is still needed, colors them gayly but most artistically, so that they will delight the child's eye, not to speak of the grown-up's, and there she is!

There is no limit to the inventive talent you can employ in such work. Toys you can make that are full of fun, toys that do unexpected things, toys that illustrate characters out of Mother Goose or the old fairy tales, toys that can easily suggest new fairy tales to any one of imagination who sees them.

There is a ready sale for such things, especially now that Germany is so handicapped in her export of toys. The toy departments of the big stores and the regular toy shops are always on the lookout for what is good and new, and any one showing specimens of work that promise well is pretty sure of an order, and more orders if that takes.

Lamb's "Tales From Shakespeare" might easily be illustrated with toys corresponding to the various characters, or historical stories made real for the youngsters. Many a girl who could not be a sculptor could find immense joy and satisfaction in work like this for children, and she would probably make more money at it than her more ambitious sister, waiting for some big commission while she twiddled her thumbs.

Of course the best materials must be employed, paints that will not lick off however bright and shining, wood that will not splinter or crack. And the girl must have enough business sense to get her output before the public.

Not Yet

Dad—Now, my boy, get to work. You know the old saying: "The world is your oyster."

Son—I know that, dad, but oysters aren't in season till September, so I'll just rest till then!

On With the Dance!

(Bromhead, Sask., News.)

The dance at Ed Munday's on Wednesday night last was well attended except by the girls. Unfortunately the gentlemen expected that someone else was bringing the girls and were surprised to find none there.

Today's Household Affairs

BY MARY LEE

MRS. HAPPY HOMEMAKER believes in spreading out happiness "all over the place" and literally as she spreads icing over her delectable cakes.

"The trouble with our domestic service problem is that so few of us realize that these girls who come into our homes need to be cared for, and made happy just as any other young humans.

"The treatment that many of these girls receive, and the ways of keeping house they observe in this country, is the reason for the sad reputation we American housewives have among our sisters on the other side of the water.

"One case has just come under my eyes, and it will illustrate my point. My Agatha (I have had her since brother was a baby, and she is a family institution) asked me if she could bring a young girl friend of hers who was out of a place home for a few nights. The girl came, a pale, pretty young thing, and so unhappy looking. I asked Agatha what the trouble was and the story came out. The girl had taken a place with a young couple, and things went well because she was quick and willing.

"The young mistress was a busy person, and when she discovered that the girl was capable, she turned even the marketing over to her, and to all intents and purposes became simply a boarder in her own home, though she would have been shocked and horrified if anyone had intimated that the little maid in the kitchen was the real mistress, and not she herself.

"The principal drawback for said small maid was the fact that she never had any time to go out. There was a Thursday bridge club; and there were always impromptu Sunday night suppers happening, or three or four couples would drop in for bridge—'all over the place' as literally as she spreads icing over her delectable cakes.

"On the nights her employers did not demand her services the girl was so exhausted that all she thought of was bed.

"But youth will have its way, and before long a good looking fellow began to spend his evenings in the kitchen. Nobody objected; nobody asked the girl where she had met him; nobody cared.

"All the girl herself knew was that he had delivered an express package one day, had asked for a drink of water, and spent considerable time over it. He stopped another day soon. He was full of fun and laughter; she was very lonely, spending the days and evenings with no one to talk to.

"He came once in the evening when the 'family' was out and gally offered to help when the girl could not go out to walk because of the supper she must prepare. Nothing was more natural than that he should come often, and oftener.

"Finally one evening when there was a dinner party, there was a ring at the bell, and a woman forced herself in demanding her husband. The mistress, tearfully lamenting over her abused trust, and no good she had always been to the girl, dismissed the bewildered, frightened creature on the spot. And that was the end of the story.

"Now can you tell me who was to blame?"

Use a face powder for your face

A general toilet or talcum powder is not suitable for use as a face powder. Talcum powder is intended to be dusted over the body, as evidence the shaker top. Such powders, although usually pure and harmless, do not have the qualities of Henry Tetlow's Gossamer or other high grade face powders.

Talcum powders, being intended for use on concealed portions of the body, are not given the ingredients of a special face powder, nor are they ground so fine. They lack the soft "velvetness," the delicate translucency, and the skin-nourishing properties of a real face powder.

HENRY TETLOW'S GOSSAMER

is soft and "feathery." It contains ingredients that actually soften and nourish the skin, while talcum powder is simply neutral and inert. Henry Tetlow's Gossamer is translucent, allowing the natural color of the skin to show through. It never rubs shiny.

The woman who uses talcum as a face powder for either convenience or economy does so at the expense of her appearance and of her complexion.

If you could see how Henry Tetlow's Gossamer is made and what it is made of, you would at once appreciate that there is no comparison between it and talcum powders.

The superiority of Henry Tetlow's Gossamer was positively established in 1876, when the judges of the Centennial Exposition awarded highest honors to the Henry Tetlow preparations, stating "that for purity of material, naturalness of effect and harmlessness to the skin, they are superior to any exhibited by the world."

"The Peerless Powder in the Perfect Package"

The Tetlow Box has a telescoping cover and is fitted with an innercontainer from which the powder may be poured into the puff-box without spilling. This container also keeps the powder clean and dry and conserves its perfume.

Today, Henry Tetlow's Face Powder is widely used in Europe in preference to French powders. It is composed of the finest imported and domestic materials, scented with a rare perfume that is peculiarly delightful and refreshing, and made by the most thorough and conscientious methods.

Henry Tetlow's Gossamer is made in White, Flesh, Pink, Cream and Brunette tints. Sold by leading druggists. Trial portion, for comparison with talcum or other powders, free upon request to your druggist or to us.

The invited guests include Miss West, Miss Catherine Dickey, Miss Elizabeth Hawkins, Miss Mandeline Bellinger, Miss Marie Stoddard, Miss Lula Groves Campbell, Miss Lethea Turman, Miss Helen Turman, Mr. William Kiser, Jr., Mr. Fitzhugh Knox, Jr., Mr. Sam Dubose, Mr. Frank Spain, Mr. Allen Parmelee, Mr. Julian Hargroves, Mr. W. H. Eckford and Mrs. J. L. Campbell.

Mrs. Calvin Holmes, of Knoxville, Tenn., will entertain a small party of friends.

Evening Party

Mr. and Mrs. C. K. Ayer will entertain informally Tuesday evening at their home on Myrtle street for Miss Aylette Lapsley, and Mrs. Joseph Darrant, of New York.

To Miss Amorous

A series of entertainments are being planned in compliment to Miss Emmakate Amorous, whose marriage to Mr. Carl Gustaf Vretman, of Stockholm, Sweden, will be an interesting event of September 14.

Mrs. Claude E. Buchanan will entertain sixteen guests at a bridge tea Thursday, September 2, at the Piedmont club.

Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Peeples will entertain at a dinner Saturday, September 4, at the dinner dance at the Piedmont club, and Miss Cobbie Vaughan will entertain a party Wednesday, September 8, at the tea dance at the Piedmont club.

Luncheon to Visitors

The informal luncheon at which Mrs. Samuel Hewlett was hostess Monday at her home on West Fourteenth street was a lovely compliment to her guest, Mrs. Donald B. Gillis, of Chihuahua, Mexico, and Mrs. Henry DeLeon Sutherland, of Birmingham, Ala., who is the guest of Mrs. Hugh Lokey.

The table was adorned with a large bowl of handsome pink zinnias, and the guests included a few close friends of the honor guests.

Bridge Party

Mrs. Baldwin Davis will entertain the members of her auction bridge club Friday afternoon at her home on Boulevard Terrace.

She will be assisted in entertaining by her sister, Mrs. Henry Bartlett, of Orlando, Fla.

Guests at Fraternity Dance

The S. A. E. fraternity entertained at a dance at their chapter house Friday evening.

The young girls present were Miss Mary Stuart, Miss Dolly Blalock, Miss Ann Patterson, Miss Alice Muse, Miss Bebe Wilkins, Miss Marie Dinkins, Miss Fay Dobbs, Miss Louise Jones, Miss Georgia Rice, Miss Marian Stearns, Miss Sarah Eubanks, Miss Gladys Bird, Miss Marian Dunson, Miss Rudene Bechtl, Miss Dobbs and Mrs. Wyatt of Marietta, Miss Mary Ross, Miss Pattie McGehee, Miss Frances Winship and Miss Lodie Speer.

Coat Suit Holds Fashion's Favor During Summer's Cool Days

The three-piece suit is the popular suit of the summer season, for it's a rare day that a coat cannot be worn with comfort. And silk of one kind or another seems to be the accepted material for the coat costume.

A striking effect—simple but exceptionally smart is gained in the three-piece suit by Gertrude Chambers, of the Fashion Art League of America, in this costume of navy blue faille braided in rattail braid. A blouse of blue chiffon over white has an effective arrangement of faille braiding which forms a vest when the jacket opens.

PERSONAL MENTION

—Miss Annie Maude Schuessler is spending several days with her sister, Mrs. P. M. Jackson on Fourteenth street. Miss Schuessler recently returned from a trip through the west, where she visited both expositions and will spend some time with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Conklin, at "Springwood Cottage," their summer home near Ashland, Ala.

—Mr. W. B. Hudson, who has been spending the past four years in China and is at present in the Adirondacks, will arrive early in October to spend some time with his mother, Mrs. C. B. Hudson, and his sister, Mrs. Baldwin Davis, at their home on Boulevard terrace.

—Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Gentry, who have been among the most popular members of the southern colony at the Greenbriar White, are now in New York City, and en route home Mrs. Gentry will stop in Asheville, N. C., where she will spend the rest of the summer.

—Miss Marguerite Solomon, of Jeffersonville, who has been spending the summer with her sister, Miss Huff, in Newnan, was the week end guest of her cousins, the Misses Solomon, on North Jackson street, and before returning home will visit friends in Rome.

—Mrs. W. P. Anderson has returned from a motor trip through the mountains of Tennessee, spending several days with friends in Chattanooga and on Lookout mountain, and en route home was the guest of Mrs. D. B. Hamilton in Rome.

Do You Know The Real Food Value of Spaghetti?

When you talk about buying ten cents or one dollar's worth of any foodstuff, what do you mean by "worth"? Is the only measure of genuine worth in the purchase of eatables must be nutrition. But do you keep nutrition in mind when you buy the family provisions? Let us see.

Meat is probably your biggest item. Yet no less an authority than Dr. Hutchison, the dietitian, says that meat is a dear food. Why? Because we pay far too much for the amount of nutrition that we secure. Meat contains 75 per cent water—think of that when sirloin is chalked up at 35c a lb.—three-quarters water! Now, take Faust Spaghetti, made from durum wheat, a rich, glutinous cereal. Of spaghetti and its allied products, the same authority says that they contain only 10 per cent water, and these foods are absorbed almost in their entirety—go to make blood, muscle and tissue. Faust Spaghetti costs 10c a large package—nearly all worth.

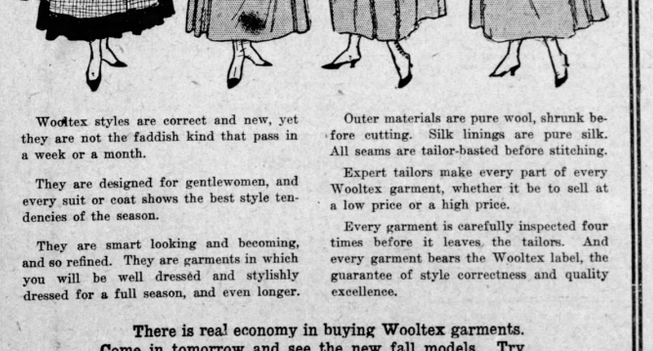
The Store That Sells Wooltex

TO the woman who cannot afford to make a mistake

QUALITY is very important to the woman whose new suit or coat is expected to look well for one whole season, and possibly two or more. It is just as important as style, for a good style does not stay good unless supported by good materials and good tailoring.

Wooltex suits and coats have both materials and tailoring of superior quality to maintain their trim, fresh, stylish appearance.



Wooltex styles are correct and new, yet they are not the faddish kind that pass in a week or a month.

They are designed for gentlewomen, and every suit or coat shows the best style tendencies of the season.

They are smart looking and becoming, and so refined. They are garments in which you will be well dressed and stylishly dressed for a full season, and even longer.

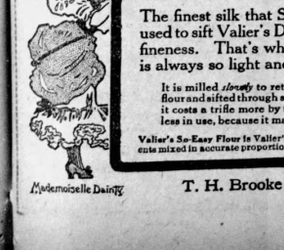
Outer materials are pure wool, shrunk before cutting. Silk linings are pure silk. All seams are tailor-basted before stitching.

Expert tailors make every part of every Wooltex garment, whether it be to sell at a low price or a high price.

Every garment is carefully inspected four times before it leaves the tailors. And every garment bears the Wooltex label, the guarantee of style correctness and quality excellence.

There is real economy in buying Wooltex garments. Come in tomorrow and see the new fall models. Try on a few. Examine them closely. See their through and through goodness of quality and tailoring.

Suits at $25 to $39.50. Coats at $19.50 to $39.50



The finest silk that Switzerland sends here is used to sift Valier's Dainty Flour to impalpable fineness. That's why Valier's Dainty baking is always so light and fine.

It is milled slowly to retain full baking quality of the flour and sifted through silk to get fineness. Sometimes it costs a trifle more by the sack, but always it costs less in use, because it makes more baking.

Manager Plans 'Kelly Day' for Local Southpaw

The Crackers and Cracker fans will celebrate a Kelley Day at Ponce de Leon this week. And this Kelly day doesn't refer to any time limit on straw headpieces, or for that matter any other slang for the lid. It will be instituted in honor of Herbert Kelly, the roan beauty of the Crackers' hurling staff. This description, it is believed, will save any chance of confusing Herbie with "Red" Day, whose thatch is about the color of a claybank red, instead of the streaked roan owned by Kell.

And this special occasion is to be in the nature of a going away celebration for Southpaw Herb. It will be employed to mark his last afternoon's activities in behalf of the Crackers, for Manager Fred Clarke, of the Pittsburg Pirates, which club owns the contract under which Kelly is playing, has requested Manager Smith to send Kelly back just as soon as he can do so. According to the agreement under which Kelly was sent down, the Crackers could hold him until the end of the season, if they insisted. But the Pirates have already been fair in their treatment of the Crackers, and Manager Smith is anxious to help them out in any way he can.

Furthermore, Manager William has some hopes that Herb may yet get into the big series this fall. The Pirates are still in the hunt. They are just at present down in the second division, but the race is so close that a sprint for a couple of weeks, involving the winning of eight or ten games in a row would come pretty near to landing them at the top of the heap. If they do eventually win out, Kelly will be eligible to participate in the big series, provided he reported back before September 1. Otherwise, he will be ineligible, and could not, therefore, get in on the big cut, if the club should win out.

Kelly, of course, is anxious to get back. He believes that the Pirates still have a chance, and that he can render them some service. At any rate, he is anxious for, a trial. With Mamaux, Adams and Ruhe Benton on the job, one more good, consistent hurler would come pretty near to putting the Pirates in trim to cop the flag. Kelly may be just the man needed. He has an excellent chance of proving such.

Make no mistake about that. The youngster needs to brush up a bit here and there in his work, notably on throwing to first base. But when it comes to the "stuff" he's there in a dozen different ways. He has a good curve, and the slowest slow ball that ever allowed a batter to swing twice before it floated up to the plate. Furthermore he covers this slow one up well, delivering it with the same motion that he throws his fast one. The Little Rock Travelers in the two games here Saturday might as well have been swinging at his offerings with a knitting needle, and this will go for all of them in this league, when the boy is right.

But this isn't all. It is barely more than half. He has the mind. That's the big consideration. There's many a brilliant ball player in the brush, just because he lacks the grit to stand the gaff when the stiff test comes, but not so with Kelly. That boy has as much grit as was ever bundled up in one package. He'll take any chance, whether in pitching, batting or in running bases. He's one pitcher that has no hesitancy at all in sliding to bases. So, if Herbert goes back to the Pirates in time to help them along to a flag, Manager Clarke may find him just the man he is looking for.

Referring to the Pirates' chances to land the flag, Kelly tells a rather interesting story himself. When Herb signed with the Pirates, they looked like very near a cinch bet for a strong fight to land the flag, with better than an even chance to win out. Last spring the Pirates got away to a flying start, and at one time along about the latter part of May, or first of June they were leading by something like ten games. It was about this time that Kelly signed, though the announcement was not made until he finished his scholastic year. Shortly after he signed, the Pirates broke and dropped twelve games in a row. They never had a looking after that date.

As to the celebration to mark his departure from the local club, Manager Smith will make known the definite day shortly. He may work against the Lookouts Wednesday, and then come back for his final farewell against the Yoks on Saturday. Definite announcement may be expected in the near future.

The Sportlight

BY GRANTLAND RICE

UP, HERZOG, AND AT 'EM

We are not pro-German in any sense;
The Teuton hunch is beyond our play;
We are not even neutral—on the fence—
At lining up in the world affray;
But there's one hunch we'd like to shoot,
Though it tear the dope into endless shreds,
The hunch involved as we rise and root
"Come on—come on—COME ON you Reds!"

THE WIND-UP OF THE DOPE.

The ultimate tip-off on the form of this National league race has been exploited in the last fortnight.

Some ten or twelve days ago the spellbound populace—or such part of it as inhabited flag-dreaming towns—was wondering just what club among the contenders would launch the next ouslaught and set the pace.

There was rabid discussion as to whether it would be Philadelphia or Brooklyn; or Boston or Pittsburg; or maybe Chicago or New York. The answer came from the most unexpected source in the world. For precisely at that given moment the club which arose upon its hind legs and proceeded to do the bulk of the smashing was Cincinnati; the one club figured as a sure tail-ender; the one club regarded as the most succulent meat in the dish for pennant aspirants.

It was none of the leaders but the despised Reds who suddenly began playing far and away the best ball in the league. From a tail-end position they suddenly swung into a .900 pace, tearing the everlasting heart out of Pittsburg, Philadelphia and New York in succession, with a display of power, speed and hustle beyond any form shown all the year by any other club—not even excepting the July rushes of the Dodgers and Braves, who won their battles by no such easy margins.

POPULAR WIN.

Not since the days of '69, some forty-six campaigns ago, when a Redland club crushed all opposition, has Cincinnati ever figured extensively in any campaign.

Redland has never heard the music produced by the flutter of a flag. It may be this season she will still finish last. It may also be that she will continue her march and with a long home stretch in September at least play a leading role.

But regardless of this, a Redland flag victory would be fully as popular among the fan flock at large as the Braves conquest was a year ago.

There is nothing the non-combatant likes better than to see the under dog swing back into the fight and emerge with a big patch of rival hide between his teeth.

THE RED CHANCE.

The Reds, of course, are still long shots. Very few give them even an outside chance. But what chance was Boston given last summer to overhaul the Giants and then beat the Mackmen four straights? About 1 in 4,000. Baseball is, even upon the average, a complex institution. It is beyond any basic dope. This season its complexity has been even more pronounced than usual. And a club that can play the brand of ball the Reds have been playing for the last fortnight can hard be counted completely out. For in Herzog the Reds have a leader who will fight to the final out. They lead the league in batting and fielding. They have a first-class infield, and at last they have four pitchers delivering in turn, Dale, Schneider, McEnery and Toney, all being keyed to the winning notch.

ANOTHER SCRAP.

The National league apparently won't stage the only hard, close finish after all.

The flag-winning canter predicted for the Red Sox some weeks ago is no longer on the board. Jennings has thrown his club forward at full speed for the last three weeks, and with Bill James, of the Browns, linked to his pitching staff the Tigers are now in position to give their main rivals an even battle down through the dusty September stretch.

James will add power to the Tiger pitching defence in more ways than one. He should be a factor upon his own worth. And beyond this he will give Dauss, Coveleski and Dubuc a better chance to ease up in work and thereby increase their own effectiveness.

Jennings has a club that caries the wallop. He doesn't require any airtight pitching to win the bulk of his games. A fair display of stuff, backed up by the heavy artillery of Cobb, Crawford & Co., will generally bag the kale.

Detroit spends most of September on the road, with Boston at home. But if the Tigers can gather in a fairly safe lead while at home the next two weeks it will be up to Carrigan's club in the east to hold them in check, as no great aid can be expected from New York and Philadelphia—and not much more from Washington. Jennings has said for some time that if he could land one more first-class pitcher he would win. He has the man he wants in James. If the ex-Brownie works as he is figured to work E-Yah Hughey has at least an even chance to pose as a prophet walking the narrow highway of Truth.

Football Guide For 1915 Is Out

Probably no one portion of the Spalding Official Football Guide, which has just been published, edited as usual by Walter Camp, illustrates the hold the great autumn game has on the college world than the schedule of dates for the coming season. Nearly 2,500 individual games are listed, practically every college event of note being shown, while the high school schedules demonstrate the systematic manner in which those institutions handle their events, instead of the hit-or-miss method of a few years ago.

The list of contents is practically encyclopedic. Besides the revised official rules, the subjects comprise Mr. Camps' All America selection and a great number of other "all" selections by various authorities, ranging in choice from national to sectional and even local in character.

The state of the game in various sections of the country is discussed by competent persons in their respective localities. Individual college reports are presented, while the records of last year's games, dual series records ,the official lists of officials, captains', managers' and coaches' names for the coming season.

Defer Changes In Sally League

SAVANNAH, Ga., Aug. 24.—South Atlantic league magnates, meeting here Monday, deferred action on the formation of the circuit for the 1916 season until the annual session October 4, probably in Savannah.

A rumor that Macon had withdrawn from the league was flatly denied after the meeting. "The circuit remains intact," was the statement of President N. F. Corish.. "Time and money wasted" was the way he commented upon the results of the conference.

Every club in the league was represented as follows: Albany, John H. Meek; Augusta, W. W. Hackett; Charleston, W. H. Walsh; Columbia, J. L. Nettles; Jacksonville, J. Y. Wilson; Macon, W. C. Stranahan; Columbus, Charles E. Walton; Savansal, George F. Armstrong.

SPOKANE, Wash., Aug. 24.—R. J. (Pat) Callahan, pitcher for Spokane in the Northwestern league, was sold Monday to the Cincinnati Nationals. He left last night to join the Cincinnati team at Boston.

Perry Makes Lookouts Raise Flies to Outfield

By Innis Brown

Doubtless the argument that a pitcher can not put a spin or twist on a baseball that will cause it to rise out of its plane of flight can be maintained under the laws of physics, the force of gravity operating against it. Delvers and dabblers in the lore of physics maintain that such is the case, at any rate.

But whether Scott Perry, flinging for the Crackers in the opening game Monday afternoon was using a "rise ball" or not, he had the Lookouts missing their calculations in swinging at his offering to the most amazing degree ever seen at Ponce de Leon. The visitors were hoisting their sights right along through the fray. They were crossed up to start with and Perry kept them out of tune even unto the finish.

This does not mean that Scotty was fooling the visitors so badly as to make them miss the spheres entirely. His strike-out record was almost a nonentity. He whiffed just one man. But listen to what he did do. He retired eighteen of his opponents on fly balls, or rather his help did this for him. Two-thirds of the putouts of the game were registered when but one man handled the ball. The outfield snuffed out sixteen batsmen, and Billy Lee alone took care of eight, just one shy of a third of the entire crop. Moran had six and Matthews two, leaving but nine to be retired over other routes. But six assists fell to the lot of the Crackers.

Perry was making no bid for further honors along the no-hit no-run stuff, though he did blank the opposition. He allowed four hits, and they were separated into as many innings. But the way he made the bunch lift flies to the outfield was a caution. Furthermore, with one or two exceptions, the chances sent to the gardeners were far from difficult. Billy Lee made a great catch in the last inning when he chased over and speared Caveny's liner down the left field line, and both Moran and Matthews made one good lively sprint for an out. Otherwise, the job of gathering in the efforts of the Lookouts was as easy as the proverbial task of picking cherries.

The game was notable in another respect. The Crackers made more use of their bats than they have for some time. Ruhe Marshall, who of late has been the medium a few days ago of prying the Detroit club loose from quite a blocky piece of change, was the flinger delegated by Kid Elberfeld to beat back the Crackers.

Now Marshall may not be just ready to step up and join his regular turn with Dubuc, Dauss and Covaleski for the Tigers, but he is considerable pitcher. On more than one occasion this season he has smeared it over the Crackers with disgusting ease. And what he has done for the Crackers he has done for the best in the league. He gummed up the Pelicans' jolly romp toward a pennant a short time ago by harpooning them twice in a single afternoon.

But Monday, Rube's shoots and slants were no more puzzling to the Crackers than the rood of a martin to the bees. They simply went straight to the reuben. Line singles, Texas leaguers and safe bunts composed the collection, with a double and triple cast in for good measure. The collection totaled twelve in all.

Otto Williams stepped in and grabbed premier honors among the hitters. Otto acquired the rights and titlements to three raps for himself, including one double. There is a bit of humor attached to that double. On his first two trips up Otto had driven out a couple of line singles. On his next trip up he was asked to sacrifice and did so. On his final visit he found Eddie McDonald on first with two hands down. He then proceeded to shoot a liner over Joe Harris' steaming dome, and it rolled lazily down the right field line while Otto hustled all the way to second. It is a trick Otto has pulled several times this season, and nothing delights him more than to place one of these.

Veering around to the fielding side of the fracas, Freddy Graff, third-basing for the visitors, took away the laurels. Altogether Fred had a busy afternoon. But there were two or two feature plays way out of the ordinary.

On one of these he enabled Jake Pitler to show up Billy Lee, and incidentally to complete a freak double play. It happened in the very first inning. With Williams on second, Lee put on the hit and run. He bounded a fast one toward third just inside the bag, and it looked for all the world like a safe tap. But in spite of the fact that Williams was away in a hurry, Graff pulled a brilliant piece of work by spearing the tap and passing to Pitler in time to nip Williams at second. Lee was sure the drive had gotten by Graff, and when he reached first, instead of taking a turn, or pulling up, he rounded the bag and ran into a big lead off first. Pitler was on the job, and tore over quickly, catching Bill off easily. Seeing that he could not beat the throw out, Lee stopped and Pitler himself tagged him out, thereby completing the freak play.

But this wasn't all that Graff did. In the third inning he hustled far over toward short to take McDonald's bounder and tossed him out. Then in the eighth Scott Perry bounded a slow one over Marshall's head. Caveny and Pitler were both so far back on the grass that neither had a chance to get up in time. Graff dashed over directly in front of second, grabbed the ball and pegged the pitcher out at first by a step. That tap should have been a hit by all means, not that Perry needs it, but just on general principles.

As for the program followed out by the Crackers in routing Marshall, it went something like the following: With two gone in the second inning, Matthews whizzed a single past the box that rolled on to center. Bill Rumler poled a liner to center that Jud Daley attempted an ambitious play on, trying to make a shoestring catch. The ball got by him and rolled to deep center, allowing Rumler to take three bags. Bisland dropped a Texas Leaguer just back of second and Big Bill trotted home.

In the next frame Williams opened with a single, but was forced by Lee on a tap to Graff. Moran singled to left, but Lee was stopped at second. Kauffman whaled a safe one to right and Lee counted, while Roy raced to third. Moran and Kauffman pulled a double steal, Roy scoring when Peters' riflelike shot to second tore through Pitler's mitts.

McDonald opened the fifth with a single. Williams sacrificed. Lee singled to left. McDonald went to third, and when McBride heaved home to hold McDonald on third Lee reached second. Moran put on the squeeze play and McDonald rushed over. Marshall made no hurry in fielding the ball and Roy beat it out for a single, as Lee pulled into third. Matthews drew a pass, filling the bags and Rumler ripped a single to right, counting Lee and Moran. Bisland drew a pass, filling the bags again, but Caveny managed to grab Perry's grounder in time to force Bisland at second.

Press Tourney Starts Monday

Pencil pushers and other affiliates of the newspaper and publicity end of Atlanta will begin their annual golf tournament Monday of next week. This tournament will be staged this year over the Ansley Park course, the management having kindly offered the course for the conflict. A committee composed of Dick Jemison, O. B. Keeler and Innis Brown has the details of arrangement in hand. Announcement of rules and handicaps will be made within the next day or two. In the meantime the course is open to newspaper men who expect to enter the tourney. All active newspaper men, including business office and editorial forces, as well as publicity agents, are eligible to play.

It is expected that at least two flights will enter this competition. Last season Malone Baskerville, at that time connected with the local office of the Associated Press, won the cup. Baskerville has since left the city. This is the third annual tournament, the first having been won by Inman Gray, of The Journal, in 1912.

Champion Printers' Ball Team Beaten

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 24.—Boston, the present champions, as well as Philadelphia and Cleveland, was eliminated in the first round of the Union Printers' eighth annual baseball tournament which opened here Monday. The winning teams were St. Louis, Washington and St. Paul.

As BRYAN Said to WILSON

GOD BLESS you. Mr. Renter, but, He's not going to do anything for you that you can do for yourself. One of the things you can do for yourself is to buy a home. Ninety-nine out of every 100 could own homes if they had the will—yes will—money is a secondary matter. Where there's a will there's a way, you know. Come on down to Decatur, the home of the particular, the hard to please. Decatur eliminates the necessity of the boarding school. You'll be surprised when you see my 6-room bungalow, so home-like, so convenient, so artistic, yet so reasonable. They are thoroughly modern, hardwood floors, equipped for furnace, gas and electric. Just off Ponce de Leon avenue on Ponce de Leon place, three blocks from car line. Four blocks for sidewalks and curbing; will be laid soon. You'll be court house. I pay for sidewalks and curbing; will be laid soon. You'll be delightfully surprised. Prices $4,600, $1,000 under market. Terms. F. B. Hopkins, Empire building.

COTTON

Market in New York Closed 8 to 11 Points Higher Than Previous Close

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Aug. 24.—Optimistic advices from Washington as to the ability of the cotton situation to withstand the contraband declaration, and the unsettled conditions of the Mexican pool market were followed by more or less covering in the cotton market here early today and after opening steady at an advance of 1 to 3 points active months sold 8 to 9 points net higher. This advance carried October up to 9.30 and January to 9.09, or about 18 to 20 points above the level of yesterday and there was enough selling to check the upward movement, but Liverpool and Wall street houses were considerable buyers and the market held steady during the early trading.

Optimistic advices from Washington as to the financing of the early new crop movement probably contributed to the opening advance, but trading became very quiet later in the morning and prices eased off 2 to 3 points from the best under realizing.

Spot cotton quiet; middling uplands, 9.30; no sales.

The late morning reactions were followed by renewed strength, the level of yesterday and hovering around the figures current at the close of business Saturday. Offers were scarce and there was a good demand from shorts and covering which seemed partly due to a more hopeful feeling in financial circles generally. Cotton contracts sold up to 9.32 and January to 9.71, or 15 to 20 points net higher.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON.
(By Associated Press.)

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 24.—The cotton market opened steady with prices 1 point higher to 2 lower by favorable cables. Little pressure to sell and the market held steady during the first hour, a half hour of business prices were at an advance of 4 to 6 points.

The very steady feeling was maintained during the morning. Offerings were slender at all times and prices advanced at noon to a net advance of 9 to 10 points.

The market was stagnant in the afternoon and at 1:30 stood at a net rise of 6 to 8 points.

HAYNE & CLARK'S COTTON LETTER.

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 24.—Liverpool conformed to our advance in futures, but spot sales were disappointing, only 5,000 bales taken at 6 points higher quotations.

Private cables point to yesterday's fantastic peace rumors, which we may as well regard as a blind for covering by bear interests in anticipation of a bullish bureau report.

Weather map is favorable in regard to politics in consequence of doubt in the essential points to the Arabic case.

Weekly bank statements were also in favor of the bull. Heavy rains again set in over the northwestern cotton belt today. The forecast of weather is indicated to continue in the western and central states.

Flood damage is reported from Arkansas and crop accounts generally unfavorable.

It is not unlikely that the coming bureau report will show some a low condition as to suggest a crop of moderate proportions.

Our market opened slightly higher and advanced 8 to 11 points in the absence of pressure and more general covering.

The technical position indicates bad weather for the belt and the tendency to approach a bad fall and the outlook for crop is fully sustained by developments. The weather map yesterday cooler in Arkansas and Tennessee, which states need warmth and sunshine.

Bethlehem Steel, Beet Sugar, Car Foundry, Lackawanna Steel and Crucible Firm

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Aug. 24.—Yesterday's late rally was resumed at today's opening, all the leaders in the list, including Bethlehem Steel, Lackawanna Steel, which is fulfilling large orders for railroads, opened with a gain of 2½ points which it soon increased to 7, touching 65 a high record. New York Air Brake and Crucible, together with American Can, American Car, Pressed Steel Car, Republic Steel and Studebaker, also scored substantial advances. United States Steel made only a fractional gain over 71¾, while Bethlehem Steel rose 5¾ to 275. Baltimore and Ohio was the feature of the railways, gaining a point of favorable July earnings.

The market became dull and featureless in the early afternoon, trading became fractionally narrower, limits except Steel, which reacted 1½ points, at the noon hour. Demand for Tennessee Copper advanced that stock 2½ to 34¾. Royal Dutch rose 1 point.

Prices were at highest levels in the last hour, the request of the German ambassador that the United States withhold judgment early on the sinking of the Arabic till all the facts should be known being a bullish factor.

The closing was strong.

COTTON GOSSIP

(By Associated Press.)

Times-Picayune says: Now that the long threatened announcement placing cotton on the list of absolutely contraband has been made there is a general disposition on the part of traders to make the best of the situation. Just what steps the allies will take to make the declaration effective remains to be seen. The statement that they have a plan to support the market, if necessary, the details of which have not been made public, led many to believe that the British government proposed to buy cotton and distribute it to neutral countries to satisfy their legitimate needs, if any event it will be possible to ship cotton as usual to the ports of the allies, and without doubt it will also be possible to ship under some restrictions to the ports of neutral powers as for the purpose in declaring cotton contraband is to prevent Germany getting supplies and not to stop neutral countries from acquiring such cotton as they require for their own wants. Although the trade has marched to more freely, there has been no pressure felt as yet to sell cotton and the period for this period of the season; reaching 20,630 bales so far this week, as compared with only 12,000 bales last year and 10,633 year before last. That the Arabic incident has assumed a serious phase cannot be denied, but the market is in pretty certain to continue nervous until it is disposed of. The fact that President Wilson has determined to await German's reply to a request for an explanation before acting lends the hope that some satisfactory way will be found to prevent a rupture of diplomatic relations.

Washington says: "Secretary McAdoo announced that the consequence of yesterday's declaration he would, if necessary, deposit $30,000,000 of treasury funds in the national banks of Atlanta, Dallas and Richmond for the purpose of relieving cotton loaders. This fund would be deposited temporarily without interest and if the object could be better served the deposit would be made with other national banks, who could lend it on cotton at 6 per cent. Mr. F. Hutton & Co. say: Weather map is as due to ½ point lower. With the exception of local showers the central states report mostly fair weather has had over the belt yesterday. Indications point to a continuation of same to-day and tomorrow. The opinion is gaining ground among conservative traders that bearish features have run their course and another bull market should show gradual improvement.

Hayden, Stone & Co. say: Reaction on the contraband list, and the tension existing between the United States and Germany, it was not surprising that prices broke sharply yesterday. It was a subject of comment that the market held so well. The fact that Germany's reply was not sufficient pressure to prodmce weakness.

General easy rains again over north-western quarter of belt, which is very unfavorable to the crop, but not unseasonable.

Look for bullish bureau, low enough to indicate a crop small enough to sustain prices.—Bonfire.

11 a. m. bids in New York were as follows: October, 9.28; December, 9.36; January, 9.50.

10 a. m. bids in New Orleans were: October, 9.09; December, 9.36; January, 9.50.

Map complete indicates generally fair weather coming from west. Considerable colder in Arkansas, Tennessee and Carolinas. Rains in east Thursday and probably heavy general rainfall in Texas. Temperatures will be normal to slight next three days.

New Orleans reports very steady and held higher in line with higher futures. Pretty good demand on the spot basis.

Forecast:

Kentucky: Fair, cooler tonight; Wednesday fair, cooler east portion.

Tennessee: Local showers this afternoon or tonight, slightly cooler; Wednesday fair and cooler.

Virginia: Partly cloudy tonight and Wednesday, probably showers in west portion; fresh to gentle to moderate shifting winds.

North Carolina: Fair tonight and Wednesday, except thunder showers tonight west portion, gentle south and southwest winds.

Georgia: Generally fair tonight and Wednesday; gentle variable winds.

Florida, Alabama and Mississippi: Generally fair tonight and Wednesday, gentle variable winds.

Louisiana: Unsettled tonight and Wednesday, probably showers and thunder storms; light variable winds on the coast.

Arkansas: Unsettled Wednesday partly cloudy.

Oklahoma: Tonight and Wednesday generally fair.

East Texas: Unsettled tonight and Wednesday probably showers and thunder storms in the interior; light to moderate variable winds on the coast.

West Texas: Tonight and Wednesday unsettled.

The Real Estate Field

Lease From C. W. McClure to the F. W. Woolworth Company of Ground Floor of Eiseman Brothers Building the Leading Real Estate Announcement of Tuesday – St. Charles Avenue, Linden Street and Other Recorded Sales

The lease from C. W. McClure to the F. W. Woolworth company of the ground floor of the Eiseman Brothers' building at 11 Whitehall street, an addition of which appears elsewhere in this issue, was the leading real estate announcement of Tuesday.

Mr. McClure subleased the space, having leased the entire building some time ago.

The Woolworth company operates an extensive chain of 5 and 10-cent stores throughout the country, and is opening several in the south, thus showing its confidence in the business future of this section.

There have been rumors for several years that Woolworth was coming to Atlanta, the last rumor having come at the time Eiseman Brothers retired from business last year.

BUSINESS RECORDED.

A good volume of business continues to go to record, and several new sales were disclosed in Tuesday's record. Following are some new bonds for title:

Mrs. Anna T. Garner has sold to Dixie C. Freeman her residence on St. Charles avenue, on the north side of the street, 309 feet east of Barnett, for $6,000. The lot is 50x200.

M. L. Rauschenberg sold to J. Caleb Clarke a parcel on the north side of East Linden street, 120 feet west of Hunt street, 40x100. The consideration was not disclosed.

Mrs. J. T. Shaw sold to Mrs. Alice L. Anderson a parcel, 100x130, on the east side of Rock street, 109 feet north of Deckner avenue, for $2,200.

A building permit for $40,000 was issued Tuesday to H. E. Crawford for an apartment house on Durant place near Ponce de Leon avenue.

This will be a two-story frame building, but it will cover a lot 126x100. Harralson Bleckley is the architect.

This permit brings the August value to $200,000. With the new high school permit for $50,000, for which an application has been made, the month is assured of $250,000.

HELD ON MONEY ORDER FORGING CHARGE BY U. S.

News was received here Tuesday of the arrest in Chicago of L. H. Patterson, formerly clerk in a postoffice sub station at Jacksonville, who is charged with robbing the station of money and of drawing money orders on stolen forms.

According to the charges, Patterson took $150 from the sub station two weeks ago, and when he left stole three money order forms. One of these he filled out, inspectors said, for $85 and cashed it at the Atlanta postoffice; another, for a like amount, was cashed in Kansas City, but when Patterson attempted to cash the third in Chicago he was arrested.

NEUTRALS CAN RECEIVE NORMAL COTTON SUPPLY

England and Allies Modify Contraband Order to This Extent to Favor U. S.

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 24.—Cotton cargoes for neutral countries will not be confiscated under the recent decree of the allies declaring cotton contraband if within the normal consumption of those countries. This assurance was given cotton shippers today in a statement issued from the British embassy.

The statement reads:

"It is a misapprehension to suppose that the declaration of cotton to be contraband will further restrict those consignments of cotton to neutral countries which are proved to be exclusively destined for the normal consumption of those countries. The embassy has no authority, however, to give any assurance as to the immunity of particular shipments, but under the procedure of international law relating to absolute contraband evidence of ultimate enemy destination will be necessary to the condemnation of cotton as a lawful prize."

to be considered a harmless merchantman.

The Tages Zeitung heads the London Telegraph dispatch with the line "Wilson's Secretary Threatens."

Arabic Intended to Ram Submarine, Says Berlin

BERLIN, Aug. 24.—(By Wireless to Sayville, Arabic).—"Naval circles call attention to a remarkable contradiction in English press reports regarding the Arabic," says an Overseas agency bulletin today. "One report says the passengers and crew received life belts when the steamer entered the danger zone. This statement is declared to be nonsensical because, it is pointed out, a vessel leaving Liverpool is at once in the danger zone. However, the distribution of life belts, it is argued, admits of the conclusion that the steamer's captain, obeying admiralty orders and spurred on by a high money reward, intended to ram the submarine as soon as it was sighted.

"Other reports state explicitly that no submarine or torpedo was sighted, permitting an assumption that the ship struck a loose mine. All this shows the necessity for awaiting the official report.

"The Deutsche Tages Zeitung says editorially:

"'If it is true that a German submarine destroyed the Arabic and that American citizens thereby were accidentally drowned, this is a fresh justification of German warnings to foreigners not to enter the war zone on board British ships, and of Germany's advice that they use neutral ships instead.

"'It is extremely regrettable,' the Tages Zeitung adds, 'that the United States has entirely disregarded German's warnings and tried by threats to cause Germany to give up submarine warfare, which is an impossibility. No doubtless is the unanimous sentiment of the German nation.'"

Taft Refuses to See Suffragists

(By Associated Press.)

PORTLAND, Ore., Aug. 24.—Former President William H. Taft declined to receive a party of congressional union suffragists at his hotel here yesterday, it became known today. Mrs. Jane Davenport of this city led the delegation which was composed of about a dozen women. They sent word to Mr. Taft that they desired to lay before him their propaganda. Mr. Taft sent back an answer saying his schedule of engagements for the day was full and that he could not possibly receive them. Mrs. Davenport sent up an insistent reply, but the former president stood firm.

Naval Operations in Gulf Of Riga Are Described

(By Associated Press.)

LONDON, Aug. 24.—The naval operations in the Gulf of Riga are described in a semi-official statement issued at Petrograd and transmitted to Reuters as an unequal combat between the old Russian battleship Slava and German dreadnaughts.

"The importance of this fight," the statement says, "consisted in preventing the Germans for a certain time from forcing our position. Calm, foggy conditions favored the enemy's operations, enabling him to escape our observation and proceed more quickly with the work of mine destroying. The operations nevertheless cost the Germans some vessels and one cruiser which blew up on mines.

"The night of the 17th, the enemy sent into the gulf two of his best torpedo boat destroyers to attack the Slava, which had prevented his operations at dawn. These torpedo boats were unable to find the Slava, but while proceeding in the region of their squadrons encountered our torpedo boat destroyer Novik, which immediately engaged them.

"After twenty minutes of fierce fighting the leading enemy torpedo boat had her funnel demolished and suffered severe damage which compelled her to take to flight. The other torpedo boat which went to the assistance of her consort also gave up the fight and soon afterwards the more seriously damaged vessel apparently sank. It is reported that in addition to the German losses between the 16th and 22d already announced in official communications, another auxiliary cruiser was sunk."

The Slava is a vessel of 12,516 tons, which was laid down in 1902. Three sister ships were sunk in the battle of the Sea of Japan on May 27, 1909. A fourth was captured the next day and is now the Japanese Iwami.

British Cruisers Hold Up Ship With U. S. Consul

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Aug. 24.—The steamship Hellig Olav, with passengers and cargo from Copenhagen, arrived here today. Officers of the ship said they were held up by British cruisers in the North sea three different times. Among the passengers was H. W. Zimmerman, American vice consul at Rostov, Russia.

THREE PERFECT SCORES, 500 YARDS, SLOW FIRE

Marksmen at McPherson Finish 300, 500 and 600-Yard Ranges

Militia marksmen competing in the state shoot on the Fort McPherson rifle range Tuesday morning completed slow fire shooting at 300, 500 and 600 yards.

The fifteen soldiers who make the highest aggregate scores of the shoot will form the team to represent Georgia at the national shoot in Jacksonville in October. Through Tuesday morning the highest aggregate scores of the first twenty-one were as follows:

Private Terry, First infantry, 141; Sergeant Starnes, Second cavalry, 141; Captain Falligant, First infantry, 140; Sergeant Jones, Second infantry, 140; Sergeant Powers, Fifth infantry, 140; Sergeant Avans, Fifth infantry, 139; Private Sanders, Third separate battalion, 139; Sergeant Elsesser, Fifth infantry, 139; Sergeant Archer, First infantry, 138; Sergeant Anderson, Second infantry, 138; Lieutenant Dickenson, Second infantry, 138; Sergeant Murphey, Second infantry, 138; Sergeant Barker, Fifth infantry, 138; Sergeant Warner S. Hale, Third separate battalion, 138; Sergeant R. J. Williams, Second cavalry, 138; Lieutenant Russell, Coast artillery, 138; Sergeant Smith, First infantry, 137; Sergeant Edwards, Second infantry, 137; Private Joe Hyde, Third separate battalion, 137; Captain O. L. Rudisail, Second cavalry, 137; Sergeant A. W. Hudson, Second cavalry, 137.

The high score of 300 yards slow fire was made by Artificer C. S. E. Smith, with 47 out of a possible 50.

There were three perfect scores at 500 yards slow fire, 50 out of a possible 50, as follows:

Captain R. Falligant, Sergeant E. J. Pouron and Sergeant B. D. Barker.

The high score at 600 yards slow fire was made by Sergeant W. S. Hale, with 49 out of a possible 50.

Tuesday afternoon the marksmen will shoot 1,000 yards slow fire and Wednesday morning rapid fire at 200 and 300 yards.

DRAUGHON'S ARMY 200,000 STRONG

This Army Is Already Equipped for Service, but Many More Are Needed

Draughon's Practical Business Colleges, located in Atlanta and fifty other "live-wire" cities, have over 200,000 ex-students holding positions throughout the United States—an army that does not fight with guns and bayonets, but whose weapon is superior business training—the kind that wins the battle in every-day commercial life.

The aggregate annual income of this army—the graduates of Draughon's great chain of colleges—at an estimated average salary of $75 a month, is $180,000,000.

Many recruits are needed this fall, the demand for office help is going to be greater than the supply, and both young men and women may enlist with the certainty of a position as lieutenant at a good salary, with every opportunity for promotion to captain. School is in session both day and night.

FULL WEEK OF OPERA PLANNED FOR ATLANTA

Metropolitan Will Bring All of its Famous Stars Here Next Spring

The Metropolitan Grand Opera company has announced its plans for the coming season, which, of course, will end with a brilliant week in Atlanta.

According to an announcement in the New York Times the Metropolitan will cut its stay this season in New York from the usual twenty-three weeks to twenty weeks, at the expiration of which it will begin a four weeks' tour.

Boston, which hasn't had "star" opera for two years, will have the Metropolitan company for the first two weeks of the tour. The third week will be divided between Washington and Baltimore, and then the company will come to Atlanta for a full week.

According to the Times announcement practically the full personnel of the company will make the tour, with the repertoire divided between the German and Italian standard works, with some of the novelties of the season featured.

The season in New York will begin on November 15.

Banana Famine

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Aug. 24.—The hurricane which recently swept over the West Indies destroyed 90 per cent of the banana trees on the north side of the island of Jamaica, according to officers of the steamer Commodore Rollins, which arrived today. The steamer brought bananas out from the trees felled by the hurricane.

SUPERIOR COURT.—To Maude Fuller Best, Greeting: By order of court, you are hereby notified that on the 23d day of August, 1915, W. W. Best filed suit against you for divorce, returnable November term, 1915, of said court. You are to be at November term, 1915, of said court, the first Monday in November, 1915, to answer the plaintiff's complaint.
Witness the Hon. J. T. Pendleton, Judge of said court, this August 23, 1915.
ARNOLD BROYLES, Clerk.

To Whom It May Concern.

Notice is hereby given that on the 25th day of September, 1915, at 9:30 o'clock a. m., it is the intention of the undersigned, duly appointed and qualified guardian of his two minor children, namely, Robert L. Van Dyke and Robert L. Van Dyke, to apply to the superior court of Fulton county, Ga., (which petition will be heard at the Fulton county courthouse), for an order to sell at private sale the following described real property held by him as guardian of said minor children, to-wit:

All that tract or parcel of land lying and being in land lot 46 of the Fourteenth district of originally Henry, now Fulton county, Ga., and more particularly described as follows: Beginning on the south side of Houston street, 110 feet east of the southeast corner of Jackson and Houston streets and extending thence east 50½ feet on Houston street; thence south 180 feet to a 15-foot alley; thence west along the north side of said alley 50 feet; thence north to the point of beginning; said property being improved property and known in the present numbering of the streets in the city of Atlanta, Ga., as No. 305 Houston street, and to relevel the proceeds of such sale in the purchase of fruit grove property lying in Lake county, state of Florida.

The reason for making said application is that the above described property is declining in value and the income derived therefrom is diminishing annually on account of a change in the character of the neighborhood, and that so as to make the return disproportionate to the amount invested, whereas the property in Florida will yield a steadily increasing income to the estate of his said wards.
